RJH board to meet in secret

How to cope with doctors' mutiny

By JANE COVERNTON

Royal Jubilee Hospital board members will meet in secret session before tonight's first-ever public meeting.

The public meeting is slated to discuss an RJH doctors' motion of non-confidence in board chairman Terry Prentice.

But two hours before the meeting starts, board members will meet privately over dinner.

The purpose of the closed-door session: How to handle the public meeting and, particularly, the motion of non-confidence in Prentice.

The secret session was confirmed by three board members.

Tonight's board meeting starts at 7.30 p.m. in Memorial Pavilion.

The non-confidence motion was endorsed unanimously by 120 RJH doctors, including RJH board member and chief of medical staff, Dr. Elinor Powell.

Prentice is currently on holidays in England.

The dinner meeting was arranged by acting board chairman Eric Simmons.

Former Conservative leader Dr. Scott Wallace, one of the doctors who voted non-confidence in Prentice, today called the private meeting "an insult."

"I'm just wondering how long it will take them to learn that they're accountable to the public," he said.

Board members Joe Bourque and Peter Bunn also have misgivings about the private meeting but plan to attend.

"I'll go to see what kinds of things are discussed," said Bourque, who is Saanich council's appointee.

"I thought we'd got away from such things. It's just not the way to go about things. In the U.S., such meetings would be illegal. I have grave misgivings but I feel I have to go to see what's going on," said Oak Bay appointee Bunn.

"Simmons told me it was to discuss how to handle the first meeting in public. I would have thought a little brushing up on the rules of order would be enough."

Bunn said he is at odds with most of the board members because of the way

Runway hitch-hike a no-no

PENTICTON (CP) — Hitch-hiking on an airport runway can mean a one-way trip to jail.

Anthony Adam Burgess, 23, of Summerville, Que., was bound over in custody in provincial court Wednesday on a charge of causing a disturbance by impeding public traffic.

He was to appear again Friday when Crown prosecutor Larry Halbauer said the Criminal Code charge would likely be dropped in favor of a more appropriate count under the Aeronautics Act.

Burgess was charged Tuesday when a man ran into the path of a private plane preparing for takeoff at the local airport and flagged it down.

The pilot, fearing some emergency, brought his craft to a screeching halt and was asked for a lift to Calgary.

Computer pact reached in all-night bargaining

A tentative agreement was reached this morning in the B.C. Systems Corp. contract dispute signalling a possible quick end to the illegal strike by 360 employees.

An all-night bargaining session in Vancouver involving mediator R. J. Phillips and negotiators for the corporation and the B.C. Government Employees Union produced the agreement about 6 a.m.

The computer operators, programmers and office workers in Vancouver and Victoria were voting on the settlement proposals today.

Pickets remained up at five locations here and two in Vancouver pending the results of the vote.

No details of the tentative agreement were released before press time.

The employees went on strike early Wednesday morning because of an impasse over two main issues — job security and wages.

The union said the systems corporation wanted to remove two-year, no-layoff clauses from the contract and refused to give a wage increase comparable to that accepted recently by 40,000 other BCGEU members.

The employees' strike is contrary to the B.C. Labor Code which states that no strike action is allowed while a mediator is still involved.

On a second troubled labor front, meanwhile, the British Columbia Ferry Corp. has refused a request by the 2,700-member B.C. Ferry and Marine Workers Union for further negotiations, a union spokesman said.

Rotating strikes by ferry workers could begin Thanksgiving weekend following the union executive's rejection of an industrial inquiry commissioner's report.

Union president Shirley Mathieson refused to say whether the union would begin strike action on the holiday weekend, adding that an Oct. 4 ratification vote was not intentionally set up to coincide with Thanksgiving.

She said the union bargaining committee was holding membership meetings from today until Monday night. Because the union constitution states there must be 48 hours between the last meeting and a vote, balloting will not take place until next Thursday, the day before the long weekend.

Mathieson said the union plans to engage in rotating strikes rather than a full walkout if the contract is rejected.

She said the union executive cannot accept the report of commissioner Clive McKee because of a recommendation that the contract expiry date be extended an additional three months with only two per cent more in wages during that period.

McKee's non-binding report suggested a 27-month agreement retroactive to Aug. 1 with an eight-per-cent pay increase in each of the first two years.

Moonies hoarding arms?

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Unification Church of Rev. Sun Myung Moon is stockpiling weapons and has become increasingly militant, says a former church member from the United States.

Erica Heftmann told a group of students at the University of Manitoba that she is afraid legal action against the church could provoke an incident like the mass suicide of residents at Jonestown, Guyana, "but not suicide."

"If Moon said shoot, hundreds of centres around North America would conceivably be immediately mobilized into shooting," she said.

Ms. Heftmann said she is happy her parents had her kidnapped and "deprogrammed."

Otherwise, she says she would still be a Moonie, and "as good as dead."

An official of the Unification Church in Toronto, who refused to be identified, said the claim that the church is stockpiling weapons is "absolutely outrageous and ridiculous.

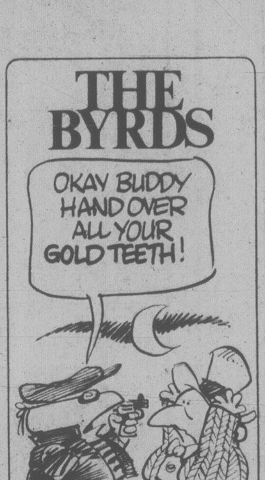
"I'd say two words to her — prove it."

He also said it is ludicrous to compare the church with Rev. Jim Jones' sect. The Unification Church, which started in Korea, has Canadian bases in Montreal, Ottawa, and Toronto with about 1,000 members.

Ms. Heftmann joined the church when she was living in Los Angeles.

She said she went for what she thought would be a weekend retreat that turned into a year-long association with the movement.

In August, 1976, she was kidnapped on the instructions of her parents and two former church members began to perform what is known as a "deprogramming."



THE BYRDS
OKAY BUDDY HAND OVER ALL YOUR GOLD TEETH!

Half-wolf 'pet' chews up boy

KELOWNA (CP) — Teddy Merillat was in hospital with a broken jaw and so many stitches in his head that the doctors lost count after the seven-year-old was attacked by a dog while playing in the backyard of his city home.

RCMP said Wednesday that criminal charges haven't been laid against the owners of the dog, who destroyed the animal after the incident Monday night.

Thomas Merillat, the boy's father, now faces medical bills and the realization that the present law contains nothing about a person keeping a dog which nearly killed a person, provided he does away with it after an incident of this nature.

"The side of his face was hanging right down," Merrillat said. "We rushed the boy to hospital."

The dog was on about a 15-foot leash attached to a pen, which was within six inches of the property line in the yard where the children were playing.

The dog was a three-year-old German Shepherd-wolf cross the owners got four months ago from a man who used it as a watchdog. They said there hadn't had any previous incidents.

Mortgage aid to bare $300M ducked tax?

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — The federal government's mortgage interest deductibility plan could net $300 million in taxes that now are going undeclared, says Blair Jackson, vice-president of the Canadian Real Estate Association.

Many holders of second mortgages are not declaring the income from them, Jackson told a meeting of the Brampton and District Real Estate Board on Wednesday.

He said there are about 200,000 second mortgages being held in Canada, and that these mortgages average about $5,000.

At an average tax rate of 30 per cent, the federal government is being cheated of almost $300 million, Jackson said.

But once the mortgage interest deductibility plan is made law it will be easier for the government to stop this type of tax evasion by cross-indexing the claim for deduction made by the homeowners with the records of the mortgage holder.

The federal government will require documentation of the mortgage details before paying the tax credit, Jackson said.

Second mortgages are often held by the agent or broker who sells a property to the borrower.

Gold up $20

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold soared almost $20 to a record close of $394 an ounce in London today amid rumors, later denied, that OPEC countries might switch to British pounds from U.S. dollars as the medium for oil payments.

Drain of MDs costs $120M

CALGARY (CP) — The exodus of some 800 doctors to the United States this year will mean a loss of about $120 million to Canada, Laurence Wilson, president of the Canadian Medical Association, said Wednesday.

This drain of talent is a "substantial hemorrhage" in the medical profession, he told reporters after a speech to the Alberta Medical Association.

Medical schools produce about 1,800 graduates a year, he said, and it costs $150,000 to train each one.

The cost cannot be measured in dollars alone. Many of the departing doctors are bright, young graduates who want to do research, but find there is not enough money in Canada.

He told the doctors the Canadian medical atmosphere is becoming "increasingly inflammable" and laid much of the blame on provincial governments for mismanaging federal health care funds.

Grants from Ottawa, which make up a significant part of health care financing have risen 10 to 13 per cent annually in recent years, but physicians' fees negotiated with provincial governments have risen only six per cent in many cases and some hospital budgets are up 4.5 per cent, Dr. Wilson said.

B.C. Medical Association spokesman Jim Gilmore said the latest information shows 107 doctors left B.C. for the U.S. in the 2½ years to May 1979.

But some 800 doctors were added to the membership of BCMA during the same period for a net gain of almost 700 doctors.

There are 4,500 doctors in B.C. and the University of B.C. graduates 80 new doctors a year, a figure scheduled to double in two years.

Mooing distance fine by neighbors

By PAUL MINVIELLE

There are almost enough supporters now to form a Buddies of Buttercup Club.

A random survey (incomplete but well-intentioned) of homes on Runnymede and Mount Joy avenues, all within mooing distance of 2021 Runnymede, indicated that neighbors of Carel and Bruce Wilkin don't object to having a Jersey cow nearby.

Buttercup hit the news Wednesday and her presence came as a distinct surprise to many Oak Bay residents. The Wilkins' dozen chickens and uncounted bees have taken a back stall to the beautiful bovine.

Mrs. Jack Matvenko, who lives right across the street from the Wilkin mansion, said:

"I haven't seen her but I have heard her. I thought it was my imagination at first. I told my husband and he made some nasty comments about me. But then he heard it, too!"

Mrs. Matvenko admits she and her husband weren't too thrilled when they heard about their new Jersey neighbor. (That's new Jersey — not New Jersey!)

"But I suppose if they're keeping things up, it's fine.

"We're more unhappy with the construction that's going on," she said. "We've been here close to 10 years, but we're looking forward to moving out. It used to be quite nice and quite handy here. The old neighborhood's going to the cows."

Ouch.

One neighbor refused to comment unless guaranteed anonymity.

"Somebody's giving you a bum steer," he said. "They don't have 1½ acres. They took off two lots, and they're suing Oak Bay to get the third lot subdivided, the one they were refused."

What about the cow?

"I think it's kind of neat. It's probably a helluva lot better kept than a lot of other animals around here."

"I just object to somebody giving you a lot of bull about how much property there is there," he said.

Very punny.

"I think she's a pretty nice little cow," said Mrs. Joseph Moreau, who's just down the street at 2028 Runnymede.

She said Buttercup's gentle lowing reminded her of her childhood days in Tisdale, Sask.

"I must say, those people (the Wilkins) have a lot of courage. I wouldn't want to care for a cow under those conditions."

She said Buttercup's occasional midnight serenade has awakened hers.

"I could hear her plaintive mooing."

Secret board meeting precedes public airing

he handled publicity before the vote to hold open meetings.

Sources indicate the motion of non-confidence will likely be tabled for consideration when Prentice returns.

But Wallace said he hopes this does not happen.

"I would hope that Prentice's absence is not used as an excuse to dodge the issue. It will be significant if the board dodges the question again," he said.

Bourque and board member Gerry McKay said they hope Prentice will be present when the non-confidence motion is debated.

McKay, elected to the board from the hospital society, said she disagrees with Prentice's philosophy as expressed in the Times article July 3.

In the article, which sparked the doctors' revolt, Prentice said some doctors schedule too many operations and the solution to high health costs is for fewer people to get sick.

The doctors had a subsequent meeting with Prentice at which he stuck to the same position.

The medical staff then sent their concerns with Dr. Powell to a meeting of the board.

It was after that meeting that they voted non-confidence in Prentice and went public.

Meanwhile, Health Minister Bob McClelland has rejected a request by Esquimalt Ald. Colin Blair for a full inquiry into the situation at RJH.

McClelland says he backs the board right down the line.

"The board has my full confidence. There will certainly be no intervention from me," said health minister McClelland.

"There has already been a study. I assume they are acting on the study," said McClelland.

The Moreton study by the B.C. Hospital Association reccomended a major restructuring of the hospital administration and computor operations last May.

One of the complaints from the doctors is that the study is being used to impose an authoritarian regime at the hospital.

Esquimalt council has yet to deal with a motion by Ald. Larry Mann expressing confidence in Prentice, who is the Esquimalt appointee.

Royal Jubilee's stormy history

Royal Jubilee Hospital has had a stormy history over the last decade or so.

Some of the incidents since 1976 include:

October 1976: Hospitals are given an additional $10 million but RJH will still be short $½ million.

November 1976: Retiring chief of staff, Dr. Ian Kenning says RJH is being "throttled" for operating funds by the provincial government and the staff is under pressure.

February 1976: RJH cuts 112 staff, saving $½ million.

May 1977: RJH board votes 11-1 to keep meetings closed. Patients in corridors.

Sept. 1977: Modified disaster plan is implemented to clear beds because of over-crowding.

Feb. 1977: Executive director Dr. Archibald Pickles writes to McClelland protesting inadequate facilities, beds clogged with long-term care patients and confusion.

Oct. 1978: Vice-chairman of board, Terry Prentice, says patient care suffering due to budget cuts, that there is a seven month delay in elective surgery, and 800 surgery cases were cancelled in first nine months of year.

Nov. 1978: McClelland announces five per cent budget increase ceiling.

Dec. 1978: Medical staff takes ads in papers attacking government cost control methods and asking action from McClelland. Some 66 nursing positions chopped. A $45-million dollar budget submitted representing 14.5 per cent increase.

May 1979: First stage of RJH renovation to begin immediately. The Moreton report calls for major re-structuring of hospital administration and computor systems.

July, 1979: Board chairman Prentice says RJH holding budget line, more wards may close, solution is for fewer people to get sick.

Wallace calls for Prentice's resignation.

McClelland says government will pick up hospital deficits.

More beds close at RJH (30 since June 15). Prentice blames nursing shortage.

Board members vote 7-4 to hold open meetings.

Sept. 1979: Doctors vote non-confidence in board chairman Terry Prentice.

Salisbury strikes at rebel targets

SALISBURY (UPI) — Zimbabwe-Rhodesian air and ground forces struck at suspected black guerrilla targets in neighboring Mozambique today in the first cross-border raid reported officially since the start of the London peace talks.

The military command said the attackers blasted targets 25 miles inside Mozambique northeast of the Zimbabwe-Rhodesian border town of Umtali.

It said the targets were occupied by guerrillas of Robert Mugabe's wing of the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance.

In Zimbabwe Rhodesia, some 60 pro-Mugabe guerrillas fired mortars and small arms at a base in the Chinamora tribal reserve some 15 miles outside Salisbury.

Witnesses told reporters at the scene that the insurgents put two bullets through the water tower of the base and wounded three men before escaping with four dead.

The Weather

A small high pressure area west of a frontal system tracking east across the north Pacific was expected to modify cloudy conditions.

Periods of rain or showers were expected on the north coast and West Vancouver Island.

The system was expected to continue eastward, spreading rain or showers to the remainder of the south coast and cloudy weather with occasional showers to most parts of the interior.

Radioactive plant seized

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — On orders from the governor, the National Guard Wednesday seized a shuttered radioactive materials plant once described by a nuclear expert as responsible for radioactivity leaks "worse than at Three Mile Island."

A detail of up to six guardsmen, with some state police troopers, maintained security today at the American Atomics Corp. plant, a supplier of radioactive tritium used in making luminous watch faces and glow-in-the-dark signs.

Thomas Caffarella, an American Atomics official who said he designed some of the production machinery, warned that state control could cause larger releases of radiation if someone should "push the wrong valve."

Gov. Bruce Babbitt signed an emergency order Tuesday night ordering the guard to seize the plant.

Ferry back after Christmas

The damaged ferry Queen of Alberni will probably return to service after Christmas, B.C. Ferry Corp. spokesman Bill Bouchard said Wednesday.

Bouchard said the vessel's No. 2 gear box, which was severely damaged when the ferry ran aground Aug. 9 on Collinson Reef in Active Pass, is still in Germany being repairs.

Board declares McGeer breached labor code

VANCOUVER (CP) — Education Minister Pat McGeer breached the provincial Labor Code in statements he made two years ago about the faculty union at Notre Dame University in Nelson, says the British Columbia Labor Relations Board.

A three-man board panel headed by Don Munroe said Wednesday that statements made by McGeer and two of his officials — for which the minister accepted responsibility — amounted to coercive conduct and could reasonably have the effect of compelling or inducing members to leave their union.

The panel said in a written decision that the statements were those made before legislation was introduced to take over the university, formerly a private degree-granting institution.

Statements made during the introduction of legislation, or later, were not a breach of the code because they concerned established government policy and were therefore exempted, the panel added.

It said two of the statements before the legislation were made by Walter Hardwick, deputy education minister, one by the minister himself and another by James Bennett, then McGeer's executive assistant.

The report said Hardwick told the mayor of Nelson and others that the existence of the faculty union was preventing the continuation of third and fourth-year courses at the university.

Hardwick had also said publicly that the problem at the university was the unionized faculty, the report added.

McGeer, the panel determined, told a meeting in Nelson that the militant professors at the West Kootenay region university were discouraging existing universities from taking over the third and fourth-year courses.

It said Bennett told the president of the student union that, if the faculty union decertified, the third and fourth-year programs would continue.

Agent denies warning on one-engine sailings

The B.C. Ferry Corp. has never been advised by the manufacturer of the engines in three ferries that the vessels should never sail on one engine, a spokesman for the manufacturer has claimed.

"The reverse is actually true," said Terry Green of Art English Diesel Ltd., North Vancouver, agents for the West German manufacturing firm of Mak and Maschenbau.

He said the horsepower in one of the two engines in the Queen of Alberni, Queen of Cowichan and the Queen of Coquitlam is equal to the horsepower of all four engines in the Queen of Saanich and the Queen of Esquimalt.

A Canadian Press story from Vancouver, carried in the Times Monday, said the B.C. Ferry Corp. has required its captains to sail the Alberni, Cowichan and Coquitlam on one engine contrary to a manufacturer's warning against the practice.

The report quoted unnamed ferry captains as saying they felt the practice of sailing those vessels on one engine was unsafe.

Green denied statements attributed to him in the CP story.

He was quoted as saying he was surprised to learn the ferries sometimes went on runs with only one functioning engine. "I thought they only did that in emergencies," he is quoted as saying.

Green said he was telephoned by the Vancouver Province and asked if the manufacturer approved of running the vessels on just one engine.

Green said he told the caller he was totally unaware of any such approval, that he was in no position to comment because he is not a diesel engineer.

He said he told the caller he was unaware of the nornal operating procedure for the Mak engines.

Green denied having said he was "surprised to learn the ferries were sometimes sent on runs with only one functioning engine."

Bennett fears slide if gas price hiked

B.C. may be reducing its sales markets by seeking more money for its natural gas, Premier Bill Bennett said Wednesday.

The provincial government is asking the National Energy Board to raise the price of natural gas sold to the U.S. to the $3.62 a thousand cubic feet the U.S. will pay for Mexican natural gas under an agreement reached last week.

Canadian natural gas currently sells for $2.80 a thousand cubic feet.

Bennett said the danger is that by the time the cost of the pipeline is included in the price, B.C. natural gas will be more expensive than Mexican gas.

"The Americans could then be looking for cheaper alternatives and we may lose some of our market."

2,4-D dangers raised

KELOWNA (CP) — A Russian study has raised new evidence of the dangers of the controversial herbicide 2,4-D, says the South Okanagan Environmental Coalition.

John Warnock, coalition research director, said Wednesday that the study lends credence to speculation that 2,4-D may cause birth defects.

Warnock said the study is important because it tests the chemicals in combination and at levels similar to those found in Okanagan lakes, where 2,4-D is used to combat Eurasian milfoil, a tenacious, fast-growing weed.

Loggers seek tire theft brake

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Local loggers are wondering how to put the brakes on an unusually-high number of heavy equipment tire thefts around this city.

Skidder tires with rims weighing up to 3,000 pounds have been disappearing, not only from storage areas, but off equipment at night and during weekends.

The tires cost almost $1 a pound, making thefts costly for the small logging contractor, who might see a month's profit wiped out through tire losses.

Rail restoration cost disputed

KELOWNA (CP) — Restoration of the scenic Kettle Valley Railway as a tourist attraction can be done for a fraction of the cost estimated by the provincial government, says a feasibility study prepared for the Okanagan-Similkameen Tourist Association.

Brian Morris, association president, said Wednesday that the study, prepared by three Vancouver consulting firms, says a 100-kilometre stretch can be saved for $1.8 million, while the government estimate is $26 million.

RCMP constable charged

SURREY (CP) — RCMP Constable Allan Zalys has been charged with dangerous driving in connection with a fatal collision Aug. 25 that killed a 63-year-old Surrey woman.

Zalys, 26, of Langley, was chasing a speeder when he collided with a car occupied by three persons. Annie McDonald was killed in the accident.

Ottawa should remain involved

We share some of Opposition Leader Dave Barrett's concerns over B.C. gaining control of offshore oil and mineral resources.

The environmental risks inherent in the development of these resources are high, as illustrated by the blowout of an oil well in the Gulf of Mexico.

As yet, there have been no details on whether provincial or federal authorities will regulate drilling and mining of west coast seabeds. How this jurisdictional question is resolved is paramount to the safe development of offshore resources.

Barrett says the federal government must have control or at least a rôle in environmental standards for any offshore drilling. That makes sense. The federal government is the only authority that now has any hope of enforcing those standards, whatever they may be.

The provincial government should certainly be involved in setting regulations to protect the environment adequately. But the federal government with its fleets of Coast Guard, fisheries, marine research and armed forces vessels can at least provide some measure of security both for the environment and the people doing the drilling. For the provincial government to provide the same insurance would mean a tremendous duplication of effort.

Federal ministries have also developed a measure of expertise in offshore drilling through monitoring exploration activities in the Beaufort Sea and off the east coast. They also have jursidiction over salt water fisheries, which are most vulnerable to oil hazards.

Communication problems between resource managers would be fewer if oil and mineral exploration and fisheries remained in the same jursidiction. The conflict this summer between the provincial forest service and the federal fisheries service on the Queen Charlotte Islands demonstrated out just how incompatible resource management from two levels of government can be.

Quite properly, the provincial government doesn't appear to be in a hurry to have a resumption of off shore exploration. There has been no request for the federal government to lift the 10-year moratorium on west coast offshore drilling imposed in 1972.

Joe Clark still holds most of the cards in this power shuffle. The Canadian constitutional gives offshore resource control to the federal government. Presumably he can disperse that control to the provinces. But he can also use that edge to ensure the highest environmental standards.

Showing disdain

The provincial Transport Minister, Alex Fraser, certainly knows no bounds when it comes to inspiring public confidence in the B.C. ferry fleet.

The B.C. Ferry Officers Committee — a group representing ferry masters and officers — says in a report that management practices have compromised the ability of ship personnel to maintain high safety standards.

Fraser says he knew nothing of the report. But before even taking the time to read it, he says that "any question of safety on the ferries is complete garbage, because safety is of paramount importance in the B.C. Ferry Corporation operations."

The committee says that corporation managers treat officers with arrogant disdain. It says their authority at sea is undermined because they are subject to instructions from at least 40 sources, many of whom have no sea-going experience.

Can you imagine allegations like these being made by the pilots of an airline? The public and the politicans would be demanding a full scale inquiry.

As the minister responsible for the ferry corporation, Fraser should be a little less defensive and a great deal more concerned about getting all the facts. It would have been more reassuring if he had said he would immediately read the report. Then, if he found the report was wrong or was self-serving misrepresentation of conditions, he could say so publicly — with credibility.

Land of Pickwick

Joan of Arc rode the Yellow Mammoth in Remembrance of the Striped Beauty who was banished from Pickwick by the King of the Striped for compromising her Innocence.

Not exactly the fancy prose of Tolkien. But at least next Spring when the tiny embryos now buried in front the house blossom into full character, there is a better chance of remembering their names.

One more crocus bulb to plant before the first fall frost twitches the air. The Queen of the Blues. But she won't be bedded until she fits into the Land of Pickwick.

TOM WICKER

Key to the presidential race

First Carter — Kennedy duel to be fought in Flórdia.

In early 1976, Jimmy Carter's showing in the Iowa Democratic caucuses caught the nation's eye. Then, his first-place finish in the New Hampshire primary gave him the front-runner status he never lost. Thus, before it had well begun, the campaign was profoundly — perhaps decisively — affected by the actions of a handful of voters in two states with only 12 electoral votes.

Now it appears that relatively few Florida Democrats may exercise the same sort of power over the 1980 campaign, even before 1979's Thanksgiving turkeys are eaten. They will go to 67 county caucuses on Oct. 13 to select about half the delegates to a state Democratic convention to be held in mid-November.

That caucus voting will provide the first test of strength between Carter supporters and the growing Draft Kennedy movement. Since it's the only game in town at the moment, the Florida delegate selection will attract coverage that can only be called overkill from newspapers and television. For that reason — or it may really be the other way around — both the Carter and Kennedy teams are making major efforts to elect the most delegates; the Carter budget for the Florida caucuses, for example, has recently been doubled to $200,000.

Advantages for both

Such efforts make a certain amount of sense. Edward Kennedy's aura of invincibility, basically untested outside Massachusetts, clearly would be damaged by a loss to Carter, and the latter's fortunes would be dramatically improved. Just as clearly, a Kennedy victory in a southern state, even before he becomes a declared candidate, would both strengthen that aura and make the president's re-election seem even more hopeless than it now appears.

Actually, both men have their advantages in this mini-election. Florida borders Carter's home state, supported him heavily in 1976, retains many of the elements of the strong organization he built there, and traditionally should be more sympathetic to the president's moderate stance than to Kennedy's presumed liberalism. Most state officials, including Gov. Robert Graham, are supporting the president.

The senator, on the other hand, should benefit not only from his name and the assumption that he is a winner but from the fact that he will be taking the first crack at a president whose three years in office have been marked by frustration and disappointment, not to mention galloping inflation, for the American people, including Floridians.

But the truth is that, whoever wins, this preliminary test in one state will tell us little about the relative strengths — much less the views and positions — of Edward Kennedy and Jimmy Carter. It will not even tell us much about Florida. The other half of the delegates to the state convention, for example, will come from party and elected officials and their appointees — an establishment group in which President Carter will undoubtedly be strong.

The caucus voting, therefore, will not necessarily control the state convention, which will endorse a presidential candidate. And that endorsement will not affect Florida's delegation to the Democratic National Convention, which will be chosen in a primary on March 11. Nor will any of this have much bearing on whether Florida's 17 electoral votes will go Democratic or Republican in 1980.

Nevertheless, the Florida caucus vote, owing to extensive press and television coverage, will have great impact on what voters all over the country think about the campaign and the candidates. They are likely to come out of it with one of two general impressions — either that Edward Kennedy is a winner and Jimmy Carter a gone goose, or that Kennedy is not as irresistable as he has been advertised to be. And while neither impression need necessarily be correct as an objective analysis, the impression would be far more important than the fact.

Great impact

Political reporters can hardly ignore a contest, however insignificant fundamentally, in which two presidential contenders are making such major efforts. And neither of the candidates can afford to abdicate the first test of the campaign to the other (as those who left Iowa to Jimmy Carter in 1976 would quickly agree). But if the responsibility for building the Florida caucuses into something out of all proportion to their real worth is a sort of chicken-and-egg situation, the fact remains that the affect on the 1980 campaign could be equally out of proporiton.

All this suggests that presidential nominations, although removed from the hands of the old political establishment (where they rested as recently as 1968), have not been "reformed" so much as shaken up. Too few people still dominate the process — even if now, instead of bosses, they are a few voters in a few states.

CLAUDE ADAMS

Doing battle against God

WASHINGTON — Madalyn Murray O'Hair, America's foremost athiest who once said that God is a concept for "idiots," is in fighting trim.

She's on the phone from the St. Moritz Hotel in New York, scheduled to tape on appearance on the Tomorrow show. She's just in from Toronto, where she did a segment for the CBC.

But Mrs. O'Hair's preoccupation of the moment is Pope John II, who visits the U.S. in October for a six-city tour of public masses, speeches and visits.

No offence, she is saying to the pontiff, but stay off public land. "The Roman Catholic Church owns $160 billion worth of land in this country," she says on the phone. "Yet every one of his important appearances will be on public property."

"There are all kinds of government entanglements, traffic costs, police costs . . . Why should the taxpayers be footing the bill?"

Files lawsuits

Mrs. O'Hair, a large, energetic 60-year-old woman who speaks for thousands of non-believing Americans from her base in Austin, Texas, has filed a lawsuit in Washington that seeks to block the pontiff from celebrating a mass for an expected one million people on the Mall.

A similar legal action has been taken in Boston by abortion advocate Bill Baird. And in Philadelphia, where Mayor Frank Rizzo has committed city money to build a papal altar, the American Civil Liberties Union is also in court.

"We're not saying that he shouldn't come, that he shouldn't give speeches, meet people, even appear before Congress. That's okay by us. I hope people will make the distinction . . .

"A quarter of the people in this country are athiests and agnostics and we're tired of being ignored."

Mrs. O'Hair, in making her case, wields nothing less than the U.S. Constitution which says, in its First Amendment, that the activities of church and state shall remain separate.

The visit of the Pope is not her only cause, but the most important one of the moment. Eighteen other lawsuits are pending in courts across the land, including one that challenges five southern states which bar athiests from public jobs and jury service.

Technically, these cases are being fought by Mrs. O'Hair's American Athiest Centre, lodged in a million-dollar building in Austin. The centre's activities are largely financed by donations from private (and mostly anonymous) individuals. Last year's operating budget was about $300,000.

Mrs. O'Hair has been raising hell since 1963, when she won her greatest (and only significant) victory against the forces of religion. In a landmark decision, the Supreme Court upheld her claim that compulsory prayer and Bible-reading in public schools was unconstitutional.

That success ignited her. She toured the country, railing against the tax-exempt status of churches, religious services in the White House, and the American predeliction to equate athiesm with Communism.

There is nothing subtle about her. She has been jailed at least a dozen times, and has been known to disrupt public meetings that traditionally begin with a prayer.

Once summoned for jury duty, she stormed out when asked to recite an oath containing the phrase "So help me God." The Pledge of Allegiance, with the words "one under God," drives her to distraction, as do prayers before city council meetings and school football games.

Even though her campaigns are well-financed (she drives a Cadillac given her by an admirer), she has repeated attacked the "In God We Trust" legend on American currency.

Americans, she says, are forced to carry a religious message in their wallets.

Her campaign moved into overdrive in the mid-1970s, when she built her Austin headquarters, launched a radio series to publicize her views, published a monthly magazine, and proclaimed a new policy of "aggressive athiesm."

"Within the next two or three years," she said at the time, "I am going to coerce the government either to say this is a Christian nation, athiests beware, or give us the freedom we need." She opened chapters in two dozen states and a number of countries, including Canada, and cranked out more lawsuits.

List of saints

Her group claimed tax-exempt status as an educational institution and issued a list of "saints," headed by Neanderthal Man and Mark Twain, neither of whom cared much for organized worship.

The last few years, she is saying now, have brought progress. "There's a tremendous amount of anti-catholicism in this country. The Baptists hate their guts. There's also a great deal of anti-semitism. I'm deliberately exploiting this."

Politically, there are also bright spots on the horizon, she adds.

"You know, Edward Kennedy just might be an athiest. He has a more or less contempt for the lifestyles that the Church dictates. I'm quite sure John Kennedy was an athiest."

Kennedy, by the way, will be in the receiving line when Pope John Paul visits the White House. Mrs. O'Hair is not among the invited guests.

Few thoughts

The following are a few thoughts I have (and possibly others have too) about the way our present society is going in B.C. or in Canada as a whole.

Benefits of sales of Western Express or Loto Canada tickets go towards sports mostly. Why allow sports profits to go to a few stadium contractors or owners like Ballard, Molson, etc.? Why not have gambling profits go towards medical care or as the Governor of New Jersey said last week on Merv Griffin's show — gambling profits in his state are all going to go towards low income pensioners and the handicapped.

Why penalize Victorians by making them subsidize ICBC rates for people in Vancouver etc.? People in Vancouver put a lot more mileage on the average car and have more accidents than we do in Victoria. Why not give consideration on an approximate mileage basis for discounts as well?

We put on about 3,000 miles per year and received a discount from our previous car insurance firm for driving less than 5,000 miles per year. Pensioners who go out for a little drive and shop once a week should not pay slightly less than the same rates as a salesman who may travel 40,000 miles per year.

The majority of restaurant owners here say they cannot afford to give half rates or children's rates to senior citizens or people on diets. Instead, they say "no", you pay the rates even if you don't want it all. This is another waste of food when others are starving.

Why allow Vietnamese Boat People to come to Canada to add to the welfare costs, medical costs, etc. when there are thousands of Canadians living in poverty situations? It's just a few politicians who want to make a name for themselves or a few guilty conscience well-to-do church goers who support the immigration of these people. They wouldn't make as big a splash if they helped some Canadians instead.

Don't unions or big business realize that if their demands assist in the downfall of the country and these businesses which could declare bankruptcy, in which case their contracts wouldn't be worth the paper they were written on?
— R. W. Ball, 3809 Hobbs Street.

Raise oil price

Canada is importing 200,000 bbl. of oil daily which translates roughly into $4 million daily. How much better it would have been for the government to spend the money for further allowances on energy conservation rather than the mortgage allowance.

The only true way to oil conservation is to stop subsidizing the eastern part of Canada and raise prices to world levels — now. It is typical Alice in Wonderland-style government that subsidizes oil to be wasted in vast quantities.

It will take a concerted world effort to solve our energy crisis. Instead of each country spending millions on similar research, why not have a consolidated effort?

The "free float" of the Canadian dollar has not worked as the government has considered it expedient to spend billions propping it up. Far better to peg the dollar again, say at $.925 which coupled with true fiscal restraint (action, not words) could be made to stick.

If we regard the skyrocketing price of precious metals as a barometer, reflecting the future of our currency as the stock market reflects the future year in business, then we are in for hard times, indeed. Perhaps a finance minister with courage and conviction can dampen our disastrous inflation.
— Martin Sweny, 334 Doncaster Drive.

Parents role

I do so agree with T.E. Malin about what he wrote about the street kids. I have been saying and thinking the same thing for so long.

Mothers should be home. Fathers should not leave their families. Mothers should not have a mean streak. Fathers should leave the liquor alone and when the children come home from school or wherever, be glad to see them. That's what's missing. Parents: be happy, laugh, even if you feel miserable, don't take things out on the kids. In the end you will have little men and women whom you will be so proud of. They will be there to help you out in later years.

I know what it's like not to be wanted. I was beaten up and so on by a stepfather who was so old, and a mother who just stood by and watched me being beaten. I did not know any better in those days. You just were so scared you obeyed, but the kids today at least have foster homes to go to if it's awful at home. Don't run foster homes down. I wish when I was a little girl I could have lived in a nice foster home — anything rather than living with a crazy person. — M. Page, 2942 Colquitz Avenue.

Why doesn't StatsCan mind its own business?

By ROBERT FULFORD
Toronto Star

Your government worries about you. You may not have asked your government to worry about you, but it worries anyway.

There are quite a few people in Ottawa, to take one example, who worry because you drink too much. They are trying to do something about it. There are others who are worried because you don't run enough, or play volleyball, or whatever. There are people you never heard about who are concerned because you don't read enough Canadian books.

If you are a typical 30-year-old Canadian the chances are pretty good that you can't hike as far up a mountain as a 60-year-old Swede. In Ottawa, this upsets people. It causes them great pain. They are constantly designing programs to change this state of things. They are trying to reach you by TV advertising and other means. You are expected to shape up, meet Ottawa's expectations of you.

There was a time, within living memory, when it was generally assumed that this sort of thing was not the business of government. People either drank too much or they didn't, they played volleyball or they didn't. They read Morley Callaghan, or they did not. No one blamed the government if we failed to keep in good shape or read our native authors. People in Ottawa at that time did not sit around furiously writing memos about the physical and spiritual condition of the citizens.

Then, magically, this changed. I don't remember anyone asking that it be changed. No one stormed Parliament, waving banners demnding physical fitness programs. But by some means that no one has yet described, our philosophy of government was transformed.

My fantasy is that an assistant deputy minister who had nothing to do just happened to say one day to another assistant deputy minister (who also had nothing to do):

"Look, there are things wrong with the people of Canada. They're not quite right, in certain ways, if you know what I mean. I disapprove of them, and I imagine you do, too. Let's see if we can't take some of that tax money they give us and fix them."

There is a Bertolt Brecht poem from the '50s in which the East German government says the people have let down the government by showing improper attitudes; in the poem, the government is advised to dissolve the people and create a new people. Something like that may have happened in Ottawa.

In any case, Ottawa is now alive with opinions on what you should do with your body and your mind. This was made suddenly clear to me by the recent arrival of a Service Bulletin on Culture Statistics, Vol. 2, No. 5, from Statistics Canada (Education, Science and Culture Division).

If there's any agency in Ottawa that should be free of opinions, it's Statistics Canada. It assembles numbers, pure data, free from bias. That's its job. No one ever asked StasCan to guard our souls.

During the period Feb. 12-18, 1978, inclusive, 57 per cent of the Canadian population did not read a book. "It is disturbing" that this is so, says the Culture Statistics bulletin.

Disturbing to whom? To the computers at StatsCan? Has StatsCan acquired some cultural authority who can say at what point StatsCan should be disturbed about book reading or the lack of it? Would StatsCan be willing to say, then, what would be the appropriate (or undisturbing) figure for book readership? If, say, only 37 per cent of Canadians did not read a book that week, would StatsCan feel better about things?

The same bulletin tells us that Canadians watch television more than they read books, and it points out that our television is dominated by foreign programs. It then declares:

"These data give us cause to be concerned about how little of our cultural identity is being transmitted by two of the most influential media, books and television."

Wait a minute: Who authorized StatsCan to throw out opinions on cultural identity? Is StatsCan in the business of writing editorials for the Toronto Star? Who gave it the right to be "concerned" about anything?

StatsCan people are capable of being surprised. "We find surprisingly that people who watch a great deal of television also read a great deal" — heavy TV watchers who read books at all read up to 10 hours a week, as compared to the average of 6.2 hours a week for book readers as a whole.

StatsCan also tells us women read more than men, but it doesn't tell us whether this is surprising or not and refuses to give an explanation.

StatsCan has an opinion, however, on books for young adults. After pointing out that adult books (95.3 per cent) and children's books (4.7 per cent) constitute the whole trade market, it says: "this points to the regrettable fact that there is almost no market for books written for young adults.

And that sentence points to the fact that no matter what happens, a civil servant somewhere will worry about it. What's regrettable? Some people think that "books written for young adults" — teenage novels by people like the popular American writer Judy Blume — are a minor plague, forestalling young people's encounter with real books. Mordecai Richler suggested in a recent piece that when kids have exhausted their interest in children's books, they should be ready for the easier works of, say, Mark Twain: There's no real place for "young adult" books. StatsCan holds a contrary opinion, but doesn't say why.

In any case, the people at Statistics Canada — like many others in Ottawa — are deeply concerned about what you're doing, or failing to do, with your time. Civil servants in Ottawa have become much more sophisticated and knowledgeable than their predecessors of a generation ago, but one thing they haven't learned to do is mind their own business.

It's our money, let's control it

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

Canada, when Parliament convenes on October 9, will have been without a Parliament in session for the longest period in this century. The last Parliament ended March 26, when Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau called the election. By the time the members are filing into their seats, the country will have been living on Governor-General's special warrants for six months and two weeks. Validating the warrants for that living will be one of Parliament's first tasks.

It was expensive living, too. To date government departments have, in the hiatus, spent $11 billion not approved by Parliament. They may spend more. There have been five special warrants; there could be others.

But take just that $11 billion that has already been spent without parliamentary approval. It is somewhat more than the $10.8 billion which was the total amount spent by the government of Canada just 10 years ago, in 1969. Our spenders have become blase indeed.

They are spending our money faster than ever, going into debt faster than ever, and doing it without parliamentary sanction for a very long period of time.

The new members of Parliament will probably approve the warrants without much questioning — after all, the money is spent. What is truly distressing is that they will also be faced with $52.6 billion in 1979-80 spending estimates which were not approved by the last Parliament. Be sure of it, if Parliament were to sit on no other subject for the whole of the next year, including national holidays in both French and English, it could not properly examine the kind of spending the federal government now does — let alone understand it.

That is why the new Conservative government must deliver one of its promises. It must introduce the measures which Auditor-General J. J. Macdonell had been urging upon the Liberal government, which the Royal Commission on Financial Management and Accountability led by the Toronto-Dominion Bank's Allen T. Lambert has reduced to a long list of workable rules, and which Comptroller-General Harry Rogers is more than prepared to put into effect.

MACDONELL
. . . urged action

The first underlying principle of this Conservative promise is that the public, through Parliament's committees and Parliament itself, must be given full, honest, comprehensible information about how the government intends to spend money before it is spent. This will require strengthening committees, giving them expert staff, enabling them to question ministers and civil servants without restriction, and providing forums at which members of the public may be heard. There is just no hope of putting sense into government finance, both Mr. Macdonell and Mr. Lambert are agreed, unless Parliament and public are made fully aware of what is going on.

Another basic principle is that civil servants and their ministers must be brought to understand that the vast sums they spend — $52.6 billion in one year — is money. It is legal tender taxpayers work for and the government takes away from them. It is not wampum, which careless civil servants just spend and spend and spend, paying no attention to whether value has been received or not.

Comptroller Rogers, appointed at long last a year ago last spring, hopes by October to have evaluated the management and controls on spending in 20 of the largest federal departments and, working internally with each department, to have prepared action plans for making money work for value. The action plans will be published, so that Parliament and public will be able to see if departments are making improvements or not.

Mr. Rogers' job is to establish a system of financial control and management throughout the government. It is what the Auditor-General calls "value-for-money accounting" — an approach which a number of senior civil servants did their best to defeat last fall and which one of the more frank of their number says should have been implemented 10 years ago.

Ten years ago! Why, that was when the federal government's budget was a fifth of what it is today! Suppose they had started then!

Do not let the Conservative government suppose for a minute that it does not have to start now.

Butterfly loss affects us all

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN
London Observer

The extinction of the Large Blue butterfly is not a move towards the end of the world.

But we are all minutely diminished by the end of this creature which lived on wild thyme, was nurtured by a rare sort of ant and then emerged in splendor.

This butterfly used to be on an official list of endangered species. Now it has gone, some seven rare species are left with legal protection.
These are:

The natterjack toad, which is small and nobbly with a bright yellow line down its body. It likes healthy ponds and dunes and survives in parts of Norfolk, Lancashire and Surrey.

The sand lizard, which likes the same sort of places. It is larger than our usual lizard and the male is a brilliant green with eye-shaped spots.

The smooth snake, which likes sandy, health places. It bears a complicated pattern. It is not poisonous but acts as a mini-boa constrictor, crushing mice and lizards in its coils.

The otter. The Essex Emerald moth. Two sorts of bats, the mouse-eared and the greater horse-shoe bat, which live in caves and ruins.

It is illegal to interfere with all of these, even to sell their skeletons. There are 21 rare plants listed, like the lady's-slipper, the monkey orchid and the spiked speedwell which you can be fined up to £200 for picking.

There are a large number of organizations dedicated to the protection of wildlife. The range from the noble to the almost lunatic. Some are ignorant manifestations of the politics of envy. Some are lovingly dedicated to keeping a single species alive upon the earth. Some are so continuously angry as to be counter-productive.

The Nature Conservancy Council which, without histrionics, announced last week the probable disappearance of the Large Blue, has a cool philosophy of conservation. The overwhelming majority of the population would almost certainly regard its work as irrelevant to their private life, as even elitist, as partaking of an ecological stridency that has become a sort of substitute for religion or political compassion.

Its philosophy is that some beings like the bugs in the soil, indeed, are necessary for the survival of our species. They can produce sound economic and selfish reasons for their learned passion. Who would have thought that Fungus Penicillium could save millions? We eradicate things at our peril.

Then there is the aesthetic argument. The more you know of it, the more beautiful all life becomes. So it should be preserved as carefully as a Rubens or St. Paul's Cathedral.

A civilized society should conserve life and be careful not to interfere with the balance of things. Fruit trees are plagued with red mite spiders because their natural enemies have been reduced. It is cheaper to preserve than to reintroduce.

Keep oil price down

THE SUN
An Editorial

There seems to be some religious fever abroad that would make Canadians pay world prices for oil, that would force them through a purifying and ascetic process to lie bruised and gasping, covered with ashes of remorse, for their sins.

Their biggest sin must be the blessing of the marvellous natural resources for which they are being asked to pay so much. Few places in this troubled world possess such resources, known and potential.

This should give Canada a great advantage in production and trade — provided the costs are not allowed to make this country non-competitive in the markets of the world.

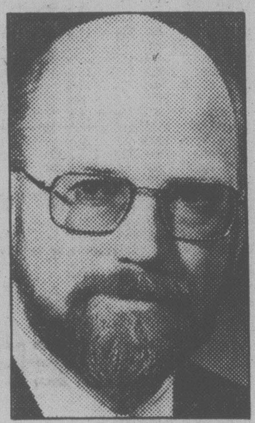
But such an advantage, hard to hold and requiring a great discipline to maintain, could vanish in a puff of inflation or a suck of greed.

The argument of those who would convert the heathen to this new religion is that higher oil prices would do two things: enhance conservation and encourage development of new energy resources.

Just trust the oil companies and everything will be lovely — for the oil companies.

These are the companes which are already receiving massive subsidies from Canadian taxpayers to encourage development of new resources. Such subsidies include more than 100 per cent tax write-offs. It has been reported — and not denied — that Shell and maybe other oil companies do not pay any income tax at all. Yet they had to get even more government assistance, such as substantial sharing of the risks, to go into tar sands development.

Their profits are already increasing at rates from 18 to 43 per cent a year. What makes everyone think that if given even more they would put their money into an altrustic hole in the ground? Nothing in the record suggests it.



HEWITT
. . . predictions

How much would their profits go up if they could charge world prices here? We don't know, but B.C. Energy Minister Jim Hewitt got some professional predictions on what would happen to some of the costs. He said British Columbians could expect an increase of five to six per cent in the rate of inflation.

Perhaps putting up the price of gasoline would eventually encourage some conservation — by those too poor to pay the price; but it would have to be a very stiff price. Gas already costs over $3 a gallon in Europe and there is no perceptible sign that price has reduced demand.

Putting up the cost of other petroleum products could be more dangerous. For example, heating oil has been so far allowed to go up as much, in proportion, as gas. Do we want people to freeze because they can't afford to run a furnace or accommodation that has one?

The Conservative government is obviously under heavy pressure from the oil lobby and from Alberta to allow a rapid and enormous rise in prices. In considering this, and even acceding to some rise, the government must very carefully weigh the repercussions, notably the effect on the economy and on the people who will be asked to pay.

The peculiar thing which ought to seem obvious and surely must do to others outside this country is why anyone except the greedy should even think about charging the OPEC price.

1980 cars to guzzle less gas

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (AP) — General Motors Corp.'s average fuel economy in the United States 1980 model year will be 21.4 miles a gallon, the general manager of GM's Pontiac division has said.

That would be well above the required 20 mpg, up from 19 mpg in the 1979 model year.

The disclosure came from Robert Stempel at a preview of 1980 Pontiac models.

On another subject, Stempel said of reports of nitrosamines in new-car interiors, "If they can identify the parts (generating the chemicals) we'll take them out of there." The Centre for Auto Safety said over the weekend that some interior parts of new cars apparently release nitrosamines into the atmosphere. Nitrosamines have been suspected of being a cancer-causing agent in bacon.

Stempel said the report from the centre was "a little like mercury-level fish. It was there all along and all of a sudden we can measure it."

Cattle

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts to 11 a.m. MDT this morning of 1,225 head at the Calgary public stockyards consisted of a moderate supply of all classes.

Slaughter cows traded barely steady with few top yielding kinds available. Slaughter bulls traded steady.

A1-2 steers over 1,000 pounds $73.50-$75.50. A1-2 heifers over 850 pounds $73-$75.20. D1-2 cows $57-$59; D3-5 53-57. Good bulls $69-$71.

There were too few slaughter cattle of any one class to quote accurate trends.

New York

The stock market eased slightly today as strength among oils and metal stocks was offset by worries about further increases in the price of gold and a decline in the U.S. dollar.

The price of gold shot above the $395 an ounce level in Europe for the first time and the U.S. dollar fell sharply in foreign exchange trading.

Analysts said traders were worried about rumors that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries would decide in its meeting in Vienna to demand part-payment for its oil in British pounds instead of dollars—an historic change because world oil supplies are traditionally traded in dollars.

London

The London stock market rose moderately near the close of active trading today.

The Financial Times index was up 2.9 to 472.8.

Golds, oils and industrials firmed.

Canadian shares eased.

New Hibernia find studied

By GARRY FAIRBAIRN

CALGARY (CP) — Newfoundland's roller-coaster hopes to become the new Alberta rose slightly Wednesday as the chairman of Standard Oil Co. of California announced that "additional oil-bearing sediments" have been found in the controversial Hibernia 015 well.

Frantic speculation about the offshore well was dampened last week by the announcement that tests to then had showed a flow rate of only 800 barrels of oil a day, too small to make the well commercially viable.

Wednesday, however, Standard chairman Harold Haynes said another 70 metres of drilling had found more oil and "we are hopeful that this discovery will be commercial."

With the latest announcement, three significant areas have been described in the well: a 16-metre zone that can produce 800 barrels of oil daily; a second hydrocarbon-bearing set of zones that could have either oil or natural gas or both; and, the new "oil-bearing sediments."

Until then, he said, "we do not know whether it is oil, gas or both at this time."

Referring to the latest 70 metres of drilling, Haynes said there are "continuous

A. B. Bristow, president of Chevron Standard Ltd., a Standard subsidiary operating the well, told Wednesday's news conference that the second area will not be tested until after drilling is complete in about two months.

oil shows through the 230-foot interval."

The two predicted that the Hibernia 015 discoveries will spur much additional drilling in the area and confirmed that a follow-up well will be drilled this winter.

Chevron vice-president Gerry Henderson said the new well would be about two to four miles from Hibernia 015 and would probably be operated by Mobil Oil.

Hibernia 015 has cost about $26 million to date, with Chevron contributing $12 million.

Third World economies outpacing the West

WASHINGTON (AP) — The underdeveloped countries outpaced developed states in economic growth last year, the World Bank has announced.

India was the largest borrower of bank resources, obtaining a total of slightly under $1.2 billion, followed by Indonesia, Brazil and Mexico.

In its annual report, the bank said growth of all developing countries, excluding major oil exporters, was 4.9 per cent in 1978, more than one percentage point above the industrialized states' 3.6-per-cent growth rate.

"A healthy export performance was one major cause of recent growth in the developing world — especially in those countries with more advanced and diversified economies," the report said.

It said growth in South Asia, dominated statistically by India, was 5.4 per cent, while in East Asia, it was 8.9 per cent. The countries of sub-Sahara Africa lagged badly with growth of 2.9 per cent.

The report cautioned against any feelings of euphoria from the strong growth in much of the underdeveloped world. It said it would take 100 years for poor countries to close the gap with industrial states even if the growth of poor were doubled while industrial countries did not grow at all.

It said that for India, 1978 was the fourth consecutive year of economic gains. Food grains production reached a record level of 126 million tons. It added that the floor level of food grain crops may be rising substantially due to increased irrigation, more fertilizer and improved agricultural extension services.

The report said trade restrictions imposed by industrialized states on some exports from East Asia had little impact in 1978, as the manufacturing sector increased by 15 per cent in these countries.

The report also said that satisfactory growth rates in the underdeveloped world are in jeopardy because of "economic uncertainties in the industrialized world," which provides the chief market for exports. These uncertainties have been heightened by recent increase in oil prices, it added.

The balance-of-payments deficits of oil-importing developing countries was no worse in 1978 than in 1973, before the big jump in oil prices, the report said. However, it estimated the total deficit for those states will increase by $10 billion this year to a total of $42 billion.

The annual report of the 134-country World Bank said lending commitments by the bank and its affiliates totalled $10.44 billion in fiscal 1979. Lending by the World Bank totalled $6.99 billion, up $890 million from 1978, while lending of the International Development Association totalled $3.02 billion, up $700 million.

About 80 per cent of IDA loans were to countries with annual per capita income of less than $300. IDA loans are made interest-free for development projects in the world's poorest states.

India obtained the largest amount from IDA, $1.19 billion, followed by Bangladesh, $271 million; Pakistan, $164 million, and Egypt, $135 million.

The greatest amount of lending from the World Bank was to Indonesia, $704 million; Brazil, $674 million, and Mexico, $552 million.

Bonds

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian bond prices were unchanged to one-eighth of a point higher in all sectors in light trading Wednesday despite a weakening in the U.S. bond market and news that the North American economies were still strong, the Investment Dealers Association said.

Day-to-day money was available at 11½ per cent.

The Royal Bank of Canada announced Wedesday morning that the Trendicator, their measurement of economic activity, posted a modest increase in the second quarter of 1979 after a slight decline in the previous quarter.

Also, Statistics Canada reported that Canada's Real Domestic Product had increased 0.9 per cent compared to a 0.2-per-cent decline in June. Analysts said bond prices have remained stable with a release of these good economic statistics as investors continued to log in some of the record-high yield levels available.

Rescue proves need for gear

Horst Klein of Pender Island said he was quitting the rescue business so the provincial government asked for its equipment back.

But Klein, a former Coast Guard rescue agent, argued he is still involed in emergency rescues and should be allowed to keep the equipment.

The ministry's Provincial Emergency Program (PEP) wants Klein to return a salvage pump, three used survival suits and a loud hailer.

During the talks, the Fair Isl. III was holed in Plumper

While he was in Victoria haggling with environment ministry officials Tuesday, his 20-year-old daughter Sandra proved his point for him — she used the equipment to rescue a 40-foot fishing vessel.

Sound and began taking on water.

The Kleins were called and in her father's absence his daughter headed out to the heavily listing vessel with the pump which was used to keep the Fair Isl. afloat.

Sandra returned later with diving gear so the hole could be plugged.

Although Klein said he was getting out of the rescue business because it was costing him too much money, he is still associated with PEP and is a member of the recently-formed Gulf Island Rescue Unit.

He said it was the third incident in the past few days where the equipment was used. Yet the ministry still wants it returned.

He said PEP officials told him they would consider his case and notify him of their decision.

'84 earliest completion of air terminal changes

Earliest date for completion of the long-awaited expansion of Pat Bay airport terminal is 1984, Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce was told Wednesday.

Some work on the parking lot could be carried out in 1981 but expansion of the main terminal can't begin until 1982 at the earliest and it will take 18 months to complete, chamber manager Brian Small said.

The $4 million project, if approved by Ottawa, would give the airport its first enclosed baggage area, would expand customs services and enlarge the passenger area.

A preliminary proposal is expected to be announced in late October after Transport Canada has completed its study of expansion requests from Pacific Western Airlines and Air Canada.

AirCan plan meets roar of nays

Air Canada regional manager Glen Steeves walked into the lion's den Wednesday when he came to a Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce meeting to announce a minor scheduling change.

Effective Oct. 28, he said, flight 143 to Victoria will leave Vancouver at 9:35 p.m. instead of 10:55 p.m.

Chamber directors expressed shock and, later, a senior Pacific Western Airlines official accused Air Canada of "not playing fair ball."

The uproar is part of a 10-year campaign to preserve and expand late-night ferry and air transportation from Vancouver.

The latest uproar began when Steeves announced Air Canada was altering flight 143 to provide better connecting service for passengers travelling to Victoria from Eastern Canada.

Under questioning he conceded the change meant the last flight out of Vancouver would be PWA's 10 p.m. flight.

If Victoria wanted a later service, Steeves said, then it should approach PWA, which is the regional carrier.

But chamber directors Arne Lane, John Ansell and Don Challinor reacted angrily.

Said Lane: "With a convention centre near, we should be thinking in terms of expanding air service, not reducing it."

Challinor said: "This (new schedule) is not good enough. We're returning to a situation we had many years ago when you couldn't even go over to Vancouver for dinner and get back the same night."

Ansell said the late flights are always jammed and it made no sense to reduce the service by having the plane leave earlier.

Directors pointed out that passengers returning from Hawaii now will be forced to stay overnight in Vancouver because they can't arrive in time to catch the last flight to Victoria.

Steeves insisted the change represented improved service for the large number of passengers travelling on Air Canada routes to and from the east.

The matter was referred to the chamber transportation committee to see if Air Canada or PWA could be persuaded to reinstitute late-night service.

Today Oak Bay Mayor and MLA Brian Smith said it should be a requirement of Air Canada's licence that it provide late-night service to Victoria.

Smith said he hoped that Air Canada's management, when restructured by the new federal government, would be more responsive to the needs of British Columbians.

Few residents object to cow for neighbor

But Buttercup's presence doesn't bother her at all.

"In fact, now that she's been properly installed, I might wander over and meet her. It's quite exciting, actually."

She and her husband have lived in the neighborhood for 22 years. The whole of Runnymede has been built up," she said.

"She's rather magnificent," said Mrs. David Crump of 776 Mount Joy.

High praise for a gentle cow.

On having a cow in the neighborhood: "It's rather pleasant, actually. As long as there aren't pigs. If one gets in the wrong location and the wind blows, it can be rather unpleasant."

Perhaps the final and definitive word should come from Hugh L. Hamersley, whose Mount Joy Avenue home is within feet of the garage where Buttercup is bedded down.

Hamersley, who says he's past 70, has lived in Oak Bay for 50 years.

"There used to be a complete dairy down on the flats by the Chinese cemetery," said Hamersley. "Nobody objected then."

He does have one complaint about the Wilkin cow.

"I'd prefer it if they'd get two cows, because of the mooing. But you get used to it," he mused.

Mrs. Wilkin discovered even before they moved to Runnymede there was no bylaw in Oak Bay to prevent her from keeping animals.

At one point, she also had two pigs, Jezebel and Hank, but they've since been installed in the freezer.

Some neighbors apparently objected to the mini-farm, phoning police twice and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Oak Bay city council reacted to the barnyard menace by enacting the Animal Reform Bylaw. It was given final reading Wednesday night, too late to block Buttercup and her buddies.

Anyone who wants to keep wild or farm animals now will have to get a permit from the city.

Moscow vetoes symphony tour

MOSCOW (AP) — A planned tour of the United States by the Moscow Symphony Orchestra "will not take place" as scheduled, Soviet official sources said today.

Soviet authorities were reported earlier to be having second thoughts about the tour following the defection of five prominent Soviet artistes in the last month. The tour was scheduled for Oct. 3 through Nov. 4.

The Soviet sources said there is some possibility that the tour will be rescheduled at a later date but declined to be more specific. The U.S. embassy in Moscow issued visas for the group Tuesday.

The sources also refused to comment on the reason for the cancellation.

The Moscow Symphony was scheduled to open in New York's Carnegie Hall next Wednesday and then travel to 24 cities, winding up the tour in early November. Thousands of tickets were sold in advance.

Columbia Artists Management, a New York-based booking agent, received a cable Tuesday saying the tour was off, company president Ronald Wilford told a reporter Wednesday.

But Wilford said a cable received Wednesday from Goskoncert, the Soviet agency which handles performing arts tours, "implied that their tour need not necessarily be cancelled."

"We don't want the tour to be cancelled, and we assume they don't want to either," he said at the time.

The Bolshoi Ballet is still scheduled to visit Japan next year.

Policemen charged

TORONTO (CP) — Constables Walter Cargnella and William Inglis of the Metropolitan Toronto Police were charged today by the Ontario Provincial Police with manslaughter.

The charges resulted from the Aug. 26 shooting death of Albert Johnson in his home. The two police officers appeared in provincial court here today.

Johnson, 35, died in a Toronto hospital several hours after being shot. Police at the time said Johnson was walking down a stairway at his home swinging what appeared to be an axe.

The "axe" Johnson had been swinging later turned out to be a lawn edger.

The Johnson shooting and that of another black man, Andrew (Buddy) Evans, in a Toronto tavern a year ago, sparked a series of sometimes ugly demonstrations by representatives of this city's 150,000-member black community.

Delta chief suspended

DELTA (CP) — Merv Smith, chief constable of Delta, said today he has been suspended by Mayor Ernie Burnette.

The suspension followed an investigation into the police department in this Vancouver-area municipality.

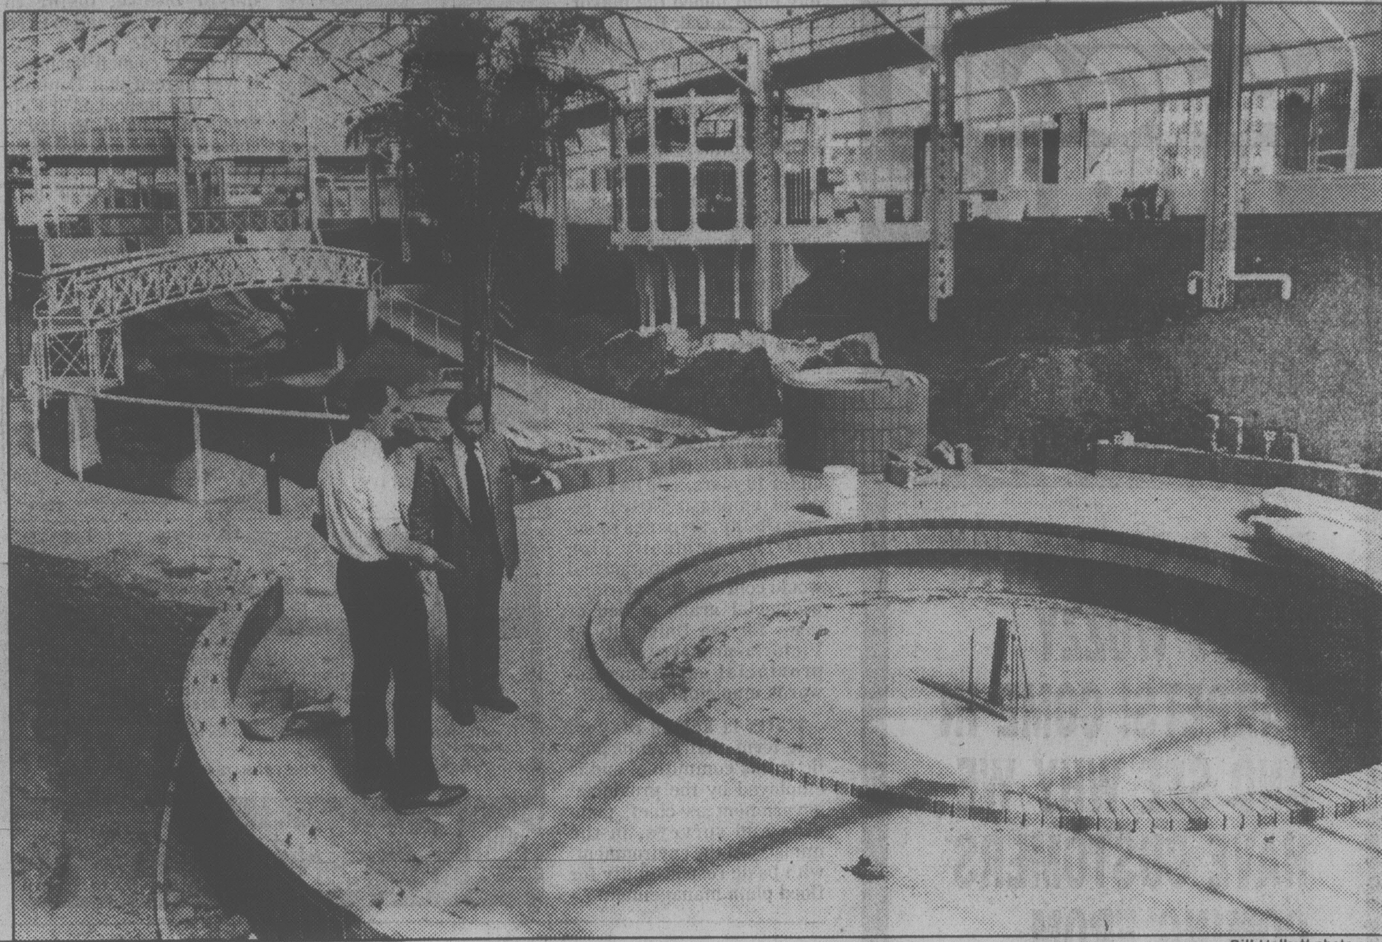
Crystal: Hit show in making

By NORMAN GIDNEY

Francis Mawson Rattenbury most definitely would approve.

The provincial government has taken a decade-old idea of Sam Bawlf's and with detailed designs by local architect David Hambleton, transformed the famous architect's derelict Crystal Gardens into a bright and airy pleasure place.



Empty round hole in foreground will be classical fountain; and waters will run off in a plastic "creek" under bridge in background.

It's certain to be an instant hit with tourists and residents when it opens next spring.

Deregulation deputy minister George Giles, who is overseeing the transformation of the brick and glass building for the Provincial Capital Commission, gave the Times a preview tour of the new Crystal Gardens where construction work is largely complete.

Tons of gravel, rock and topsoil have been hauled into the old pool and a simulated creek bed of fibreglass has been laid down, ending in a three-metre high waterfall that drops into a shallow lagoon. Hookbilled scarlet ibises will wade for food here, just where divers used to drop into the deep end.

"All of this is really a thickly planted tropical jungle," said Giles, gesturing over the pool, where now only a single tall palm tree sits in the middle.

Later this year, more than a dozen 15-to-18-foot palms and many more smaller tropical and flowering plants will be brought in by head gardener Rex Murfitt and his staff of three.

You will enter the new Crystal Gardens by the original entrance on Douglas Street opposite the bus depot. The foyer has been painted white and a brilliant custard yellow, while Rattenbury's original terrazzo stairs leading up to poolside have been cleaned up.

A circular lookout with white iron railing has been built at the top of the stairs. To the left you'll cross a footbridge floored in rough cedar which arches across the deep end of the pool diagonally, providing the best view of the waterfall and wading birds below.

The rocks which form the waterfall and the creekbed may look vaguely familiar to regular travellers on the Trans-Canada Highway. They are castings of an outcrop near Interurban Road, made by Custom Industrial Fibreglass Ltd. which does the realistic fibreglass work for the Provincial Museum.

If you stroll to your right after entering the building, you will take a winding path across the shallow end of the old Crystal pool which has been built up with soil for plants. A classical fountain (still on order from the makers in Connecticut) will rest on a circular brick platform with curved laminated wood benches.

Rest a while and watch the water rise and fall and flow into the little creek, through the jungle and down to the pool at the deep end. Colorful macaws and cockatoos call from their perches scattered among the deep green foliage.

Beyond the fountain is a grotto-like entrance of the same fibreglass rocks which descends into a 220-seat restaurant — to intrude on the idyllic image for a moment — where the swimming pool's changing rooms used to be, at the south end on Belleville.

More earth has been heaped up on the pool deck. A gentle slope with more tropical plants rises to the Crystal's second floor, which resembles the promenade deck of a ship. On the east side overlooking the lawn bowling green a tea room or cocktail bar will be located — a final decision hasn't been made.

Old wicker-style furniture

You'll be served at tables with garden-style umbrellas and the same style of wicker and rattan furniture the old Crystal had, only a little sturdier.

On the west side overlooking Douglas will be a resting place for visitors to sit and watch the scenery go by or stroll up and down. At the south end, the Crystal's old dance floor has been rebuilt in new hard maple while the north end of the promenade will house the bird collection.

Giles said one of the interesting facts about the renovation is how much local talent the planners were able to call on. They toured a number of arboretums and conservatories across the continent, looking for staff as well as ideas, and opinion was nearly unanimous that they'd have to go to Florida for the tropical plants and bring them back in air-conditioned vans.

But they found well-known local gardener Rex Murfitt and hired him to supervise planting. He was able to find 90 to 95 per cent of the plants needed at B.C. nurseries.

The same thing happened in the search for someone to advise on birds.

"We were told we have the best bird man in the country right here in Victoria," said Giles.

He is Don Adams, former manager of the Victoria SPCA and a bird fancier in his own right. The Crystal hired him as a consultant on tropical birds.

"Some people have donated plants. Some people have donated birds. We haven't gone out after them but we encourage them," said Giles.

Local rhododendron and dahlia fanciers and other flower groups will be encouraged to mount their annual shows in the Crystal and may also be provided space in the "jungle" to plant flowering specimens in season.

On the day of the Times tour a lonely pigeon roosted in the rafters, the last of many who used the building for a bedroom when the Crystal was boarded up and part of the glass roof had fallen in.

Adams describes a bird collection which will outshine the local drab pigeons and sparrows. One aviary will be solely for Philippine birds such as pink-necked pigeons and yellow-streaked loris.

Another will have several large sulphur crested toucans and a third will house smaller but equally colorful South American softbilled birds. Australian parakeets and other birds from down under will have a house of their own and smaller cages along the promenade will have common budgerigars and canaries.

While the birds will be one of the main live attractions of the new Crystal, reptiles have been downgraded to an out-of-the-way corner on the main floor. They are quiet and unexciting to look at, Giles said.

And monkeys have been eliminated entirely, although the jungle gym network of girders that holds up the roof and all the palm trees would seem an ideal environment.

Monkeys are messy people

"First, they're very excitable," said Giles. "You just can't order a whole colony. Monkeys are like people — you have to find ones that can live together."

It seems when they get excited — and it doesn't take much to touch off their whooping and howling — monkeys loose monkey droppings on whatever's below. So the simians are out.

The new Crystal also has a new roof. This time it's wire-meshed safety glass to protect people below if something falls on to the glass.

But a few of its eccentricities have been preserved. Giles said the floating concrete "raft" the building sits on — like the method Frank Lloyd Wright used to build his famous Imperial Hotel in Tokyo on boggy ground — has sagged a few inches in some parts.

You notice it from Douglas Street. The roof line dips slightly. Inside, the windows at the northeast corner on the second floor sit a bit crookedly. It's all perfectly safe, however. The Crystal is in no danger of settling into the filled-in tidal mud flats.

And here and there in the building you may see bits of the old blue, black and white tile surface of the old swimming pool peeping out from the tropical foliage.

One major structural innovation is the addition of elevators, one for passengers at the main entrance which will allow the handicapped and wheelchair-bound access to almost every part of the building, and a freight elevator on the east side.

But they are unobtrusive and blend into their surroundings.

Although the construction work is largely finished, Giles said the new Crystal won't open for another six months.

"We want to be sure it's right," he said.

The capital commission wants the seven leased retail shops and the restaurant ready for business when the Crystal Gardens open.

For example, no one knows how the new dance floor will react to the humidity and heat. The temperature inside will be at least 20 degrees year-round, and hotter in summer. The birds and plants will require high humidity. Even in the weak September sunlight last week, it felt close to 30 degrees up on the second floor.

"The beauty of the Crystal is the glass roof. It's also our problem."

Giles said that the Crystal may throw its doors open one day this fall for for Victorians to get a sneak preview and for the staff and planners to see if everything meshes.

3 charged in beatings

Three men in their early 20s are to appear in provincial court charged with abducting a man on a city street Wednesday night.

They also are accused of beating their victim and another person in an apartment in Saanich.

A Saanich police spokesman said a baseball bat and a sawed-off pool cue were used in the assault which took place at about 9:30 p.m. at 1-3572 Quadra.

The victims were taken by ambulance to hospital where they were treated for cuts and bruises and released.

One of the victims had been picked up in downtown Victoria and forced to accompany three men to the Quadra Street address.

The police spokesman said one of the suspects was arrested near the apartment shortly after the assault. Two others turned themselves in to city police later in the evening.

The three have been charged jointly with assault causing bodily harm, possession of an offensive weapon, and unlawful confinement.

'Problem blown out of proportion'

Media blamed in street kid hassle

By NORMAN GIDNEY

Publicity in the news media exaggerated the problem of the street kids in Victoria and attracted more teen-agers to the downtown core, deputy police chief Jim Smith said in a report to the police board made public Wednesday.

Marked "confidential", the document was his account of meetings of police, downtown merchants and workers from social service agencies held Aug. 29 and Sept. 5 to discuss the problem.

Mayor Mike Young as chairman of the police board had it placed before the board's monthly meeting.

"It was agreed by members present at the meeting (Aug. 29) that the problem was blown out of proportion by the news media which in turn brought additional youth to the downtown area," Smith said.

"Also, it was ascertained that this problem of unsettled youth was no greater in Victoria than other communities across Canada."

SMITH
. . . more kids came

Both Smith's report and Chief Jack Gregory rejected the contention that the street kids are primarily a police problem.

"All the emphasis seems to be on the police," complained Gregory to police board members.

"We've identified other agencies that should be doing something. But they're understaffed the same as we are."

Smith put forward several ideas for other groups to reduce the numbers of young people hanging around downtown, three aimed at getting truant students back in school.

The school board ought to tighten up on school attendance requirements, and the police should place greater emphasis on its SCOOP (School Children Out of Place) program which returns truants to class.

The school board also should hire a full-time truant officer.

Probation officers and human resources staff should be available downtown at night, Smith said, and four more detached workers (a YM-YWCA program) should be hired to work among troubled youths.

He also proposed a triple attack on the drug and alcohol problems associated with street kids, claiming that "the heavy use of alcohol and drugs leads juveniles to other criminal acts."

The school board should implement a concentrated program on the effects of alcohol as part of the curriculum. Smith noted that the police force has a community service officer who lectures high school students on alcohol abuse.

Gregory said their "walk-through" program in which officers stroll through beer parlors at regular intervals during the night is working well. Smith urged that the liquor control authorities should add more inspectors to curb under-age drinking.

Merchants should also make more summer jobs available, as the downtown problem gets worse in July and August because of good weather, school vacation and youths passing through town.

The Sept. 5 meeting suggested an emergency house for wayward youth, staffed by volunteers and funded by the regional district, as an alternative to the Cool-Aid hotsel and the juvenile detention home.

The Mustard Seed group — a Christian youth drop-in centre at 522 Pandora — said it would place two more workers on the streets and would be open 24 hours a day from now on to help. They are also trying to raise money to buy a "rescue van" to help youth in crisis, said Smith.

Smith also said there is a hardcore group of 15 to 20 youths which remains relatively stable year-round. When police check on them, they should fill out "location and movement" cards and the information passed daily to human resources staff and probation officers.

But those closely involved in the problem are skeptical about ever solving it completely. The deputy chief said the consensus of the Aug. 29 meeting was that "regardless of what steps were taken to alleviate the situation, there would always be a consistent number of youngsters in the downtown core."

Yorke runs for council

School trustee Peter Yorke announced today he will run for Victoria alderman in the November elections.

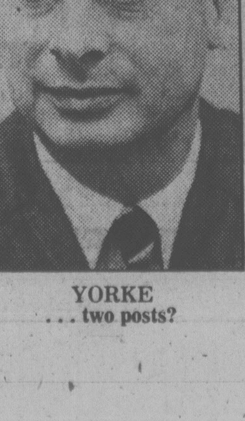
The businessman said that because he does not belong to any business organization he would not owe allegiance to any one group.

Yorke has been on the Greater Victoria school board for three years. He is a past member on the board of Camosun College.

He is president of O.K. Tire Store (Victoria) Ltd.

Development of the downtown core would receive special attention if elected, he said.

"It seems that the city is losing ground in attracting persons not directly working downtown with the eventual result that the core will stagnate," he said.



YORKE
. . . two posts?

Yorke has one year to serve on school board.

"I haven't decided whether I will continue on the board for the final year," he said. "The matter is still under discussion. It is possible to serve on both council and the school board at the same time."

With Victoria elections being held only every second year, he would have to wait two full years before he could make a council bid unless he acted now.

Yorke lost in his first bid for school board in 1975. He was elected to a two-year term in 1976 and again for a two-year term in 1978.

Man who didn't come to dinner

Some people will do just about anything to get a piece of pie at Johnny's Cafe at 893 Fort — even cut through a bar and crawl through a window.

A couple of weeks ago a man smashed in a front window and was dining on pie and pop when police arrived.

But Wednesday night police didn't catch the pie-eating culprit who left with $15 he rifled from a cigarette machine and nine packages of cigars he took from a smoke shop in the lobby of the building at 895 Fort next door.

A police spokesman said the cafe has been broken into several times in the past couple of years.

Watts joins race for Oak Bay mayor

Ald. Doug Watts Wednesday night joined the mayoralty race in Oak Bay.

Ald. Shirley Dowell and former alderman John Goult had announced earlier they would seek the job being vacated by retiring Mayor Brian Smith.

But within minutes of Watts' announcement at a council meeting, Dowell said she will reconsider her previous announcement.

Watts told council he had decided to run for the mayoralty and wanted council to know first.

In an interview later, the 58-year-old professional engineer, who lives at 2285 Woodlawn Crescent and who has been a member of council for 19 years, said he wanted to emphasize fiscal responsibility, prepare a sound official community plan with public participation and would continue to press for a provincial grant in lieu of taxes for the University of Victoria property and for provincial assistance towards municipal policing.

Watts is acting mayor, long-term chairman of public works committee, and is employed by the provincial government as chief, planning and surveys, in the ministry of the environment, with basic responsibility for flood plain management.

WATTS
. . . third try

He has run twice for mayor before, losing to Allan Cox in 1963 and to Fred Hawes in 1967.

In other council business, it was agreed that Committee A will inspect 2170 Fair Street at 8:30 a.m. Friday to consider a request by Mrs. Nancy Peterson to keep a maximum of 10 hens in a chicken house.

Under a new animal bylaw given initial approval two weeks ago, and finally approved Wednesday night, a permit is required.

Joseph Charles Edward Leblanc, 28, of no fixed address, was charged in provincial court Wednesday with attempted robbery with threats of violence.

The offence is alleged to have occurred Tuesday at the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, 1022 Government.

Leblanc was remanded in custody by Judge Fred Green until Friday for election of trial method and possible bail hearing.

Entertainer Jerry Gosley was fined $100 after pleading guilty to supplying liquor to minors.

Gosley, who retired earlier this month after 28 years of summer Smile Shows, was charged under the name Claude Gosley.

Crown counsel Don Laughton said the 59-year-old Gosley, 522 Beach Drive, was at The Empress on Aug. 1 after one of his performances, and invited three 17-year-old youths to his hotel room for drinks.

The youths were picked up in the lobby later by police and admitted they had been drinking in Gosley's room.

Defence lawyer Allan Tryon said his client did it on a "generous, friendly impulse."

A 17-year-old Richmond youth was given a suspended sentence and six months probation for possession of stolen stereo equipment.

Darcy Wayne Bjornson also received a nominal, one-day jail term for failing to make a court appearance Sept. 13.

Court was informed Sidney RCMP were summoned Aug. 24 to the Swartz Bay ferry terminal concerning four youths in a car.

Laughton said police found the youths drinking, and asked if they had any more liquor in the trunk. The youths denied having any and, when asked to open the trunk, said they didn't have a key.

After warning them that the trunk would be pried open, police eventually forced the trunk open and found two boxes of stereo equipment. A check with Victoria police revealed the boxes had been stolen from the loading platform at the Pacific Coach Lines depot, 710 Douglas, between 12:30 and 5 a.m. Sept. 22 or 23.

Bjornson then told officers he and a companion bought the equipment for $200.

Defence lawyer Brian MacKenzie explained that the failure to appear for court Sept. 13 arose because Bjornson's mother didn't awaken him in time.

Bjornson had a conviction on March 5 this year in Richmond for breaking and entering and was given probation at that time. The probation period lasted until Sept. 12.

Judge Harold Alder imposed jail sentences totalling seven months to a 17-year-old.

David Anthony Bough, 736 Wilson, was given consecutive sentences of one month and six months after pleading guilty to possession of stolen property and attempted breaking and entering.

The possession charge was in connection with a 10-speed bicycle and the break-in occurred Aug. 9 at a Standard Furniture warehouse at 808 Viewfield.

Crown counsel Ken Salt told the court Bough had a lengthy juvenile record.

Alder said he would recommend either Boulder Bay or Redonda Bay programs for Bough and also placed the youth on a year's probation.

Fined for drinking-driving convictions were: Lawrence Joseph Whitten, 29, of 6578 Throup, $400; Josephine Waddington, 65, of 1255 Grant, $350; James Arthur Neill, 28, of HMCS Gatineau, $350; Tony Felix Jimmy, 24, of Duncan, $250; John Shane Larkin, 22, of 538 Phelps, $200; and Gail Jacqueline Parkes, 18, of 3061 Glen Lake, $100.

Larkin and Parkes also were ordered to perform 50 hours of community service work.

Reward offered for Duncan snake

A Duncan couple is offering a $100 reward for the return of Sabrina, a six-foot, 15-pound boa constrictor.

Police have been unsuccessful in their search for Sabrina and the thief who abducted her early Sunday from a pet shop in Duncan.

Mike and Elaine Basford purchased Sabrina several years ago.

"To us, Sabrina is priceless. We are worried sick in case anything happens to her," Basford said Wednesday.

"She is brown and grey and has unusual salmon-pink markings," he said.

Police said the thief broke a back window to get into the shop. A local resident saw a man climbing out of the window carrying the snake.

"The thief walked past several other valuable birds and animals to get to Sabrina's cage, but didn't touch anything else," Basford said.

He added local students who came to see Sabrina several times a week have been searching the neighborhood.

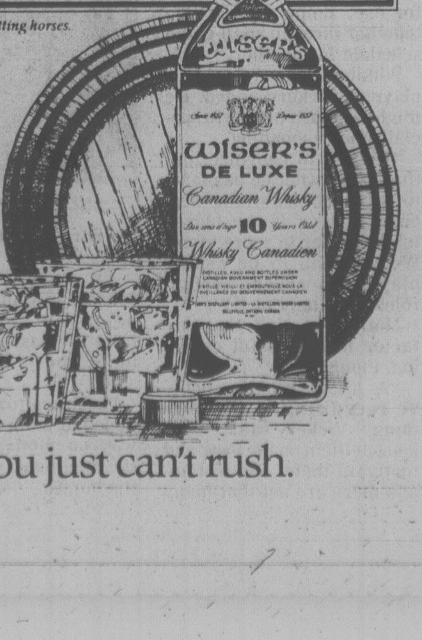
J.P. Wiser's great trotting stallion Rysdyk was a son of famous Hambletonian, and himself a sire of fine trotting horses.



"Horses should hurry" said J.P. Wiser.
"But whisky must take its time."

Our founder J.P. Wiser bred trotting horses as 'swift as white water'. Wiser-breds won stakes races throughout eastern Canada and the U.S., as well as many a neighbourly challenge on the back roads of Grenville County.

As much as he loved speed, J.P. would allow no haste in the making of good whisky. Nor will we today. No drop of Wiser's DeLuxe reaches your glass until it has spent ten full years mellowing in oak barrels. This produces a fine, gentle whisky that's remarkably easy to enjoy.

Wiser's DeLuxe. Quality is something you just can't rush.

PIRATES TAKE CHARGE

REDS NEAR WEST TITLE

Expos battered, but still retain hope

Times News Services

Pittsburgh Pirates secured their hold on first at Pittsburgh, Wednesday, but no one was giving Montreal Expos the last rites.

"If the Expos were going to die, they'd have died a month ago," said Phil Garner, who matched Tim Foli with three runs-batted-in as Pittsburgh battered Montreal 10-1 to move 1½ games up in the National League East.

"They're alive as long as they've got a mathematical chance," said Bruce Kison, who tossed a complete-game seven-hitter.

"You don't kill off a team like that," manager Chuck Tanner said after the Pirates finished their season series with the Expos with an 11-7 record.

The Pirates' magic number is four — any combination of Pirate wins and Expos losses totalling four gives Pittsburgh the title.

"It's not over with yet, but they are in a heck of a position," said Montreal manager Dick Williams. "Unhappily, now we have to rely on the others (teams). As long as there's life, there's hope."

A glum Andre Dawson of the Expos had unbridled praise for Pittsburgh.

"The Pirates were superb during this series against us," said the centrefielder. "Nothing could stop them.

"In September they beat us five out of six games. Let's say they beat us when it really counted."

In the Pittsburgh locker room, the winners cranked up the volume on their powerful stereo. Some danced to a disco tune that goes: "Get up and do your thing," which summed up the 14-hit Pirate attack.

The Pirates meet St. Louis Cardinals today in a makeup game. They end the season with three weekend games at home with Chicago Cubs.

Montreal plays a makeup doubleheader today in Atlanta against the Braves, then returns home for three weekend games with Philadelphia Phillies.

Pittsburgh can clinch the title bv winning its final four games.

"We're not going to put our tails between our legs," said leftfielder Warren Cromartie. "Anything can happen. Tomorrow is a new day.'Y

In Atlanta, Phil Niekro didn't let family ties stand in the way of duty.

Phil gave his younger brother, Joe, a beating and felt bad about it.

"I'm not proud of what I've done," Phil, of Atlanta Braves, said after outduelling his brother Joe, of Houston Astros, in that family affair.

The result was a 9-4 victory for Phil Niekro's Atlanta Braves over Houston, dampening the Astros' hopes for the National League West title.

The defeat left the Astros 2½ games behind Cincinnati Reds, who defeated San Diego Padres 4-3. The combination reduced Cincinnati's magic number for clinching the West crown to two games.

"It was a very emotional game," said Phil Niekro. "The whole day was emotional.

"It was one of the few times I really didn't feel like I wanted to go out to pitch in that situation where a team was trying to stay in the race."

The triumph provided Phil with his third 20-victory season. Joe Niekro, already a 20-game winner, was visibly crushed by the defeat.

"It was a big game, it really was, and I didn't do the job," he said.

Phil Niekro gave up eight hits, walked one and fanned six, moving into a tie with Sandy Koufax on baseball's all-time strikeout list with 2,396.

Dave Collins' RBI single capped a two-run rally in the eighth inning as Cincinnati defeated San Diego.

In Philadelphia, Pete Rose's 23-game hitting streak, longest in the majors this year, was stopped when the Phillies' star went hitless in five appearances. Philadelphia beat St. Louis 11-5.

In Baltimore, the Orioles gave manager Earl Weaver the 1,100th victory of his 12-year career as Orioles' manager in a 13-2 win over Detroit.

The 1979-80 hockey stakes or how much have Habs lost?

Well, it's that time of the year again.

So, from the guy who gave you Joe Clark and the Montreal Canadiens last spring, here's the lineup for next April.

Clark should still be in — but barely — if he ever gets his act off the ground and into the House of Commons. He has had an extended prep, longer than most, so he should be fresh. Besides, he hasn't lost any for the simple reason he hasn't played any and that makes things a whole lot easier as he'll soon find out.

But let's face it, the Stanley Cup playoffs rated higher on a national TV scale last spring than the Trudeau-Clark-Broadbent talk show; or hadn't you heard? So back to Canada's national winter pastime.

And with four new teams in the fold in what's the new expanded National Hockey League, will what's about to happen be much changed from the strangely familiar patterns of the past few years?

Not likely.

Montreal Canadiens will probably be favored, but whether they will live to reign supreme is in doubt for the simple reason they have lost more than they care to admit. Quite simply, with Scotty Bowman gone, that may be their Achilles' heel. Besides, Ken Dryden, Jacques Lemaire, Pat Hughes, Cam Connor, among others, were fair-to middlin' hockey players and might be missed.

Still, Montreal fans always have lived on more than hope. They've got a great backup system they can draw from and a new good one in goal in Denis Heron. He should fit in well while alternating with Bunny Larocque.

And, as the Canadiens always seem to come up with somebody from down on the farm, who is to beat them and/or will Bernie Geoffrion's ulcers hold out?

* * *

The first part is easy. New York Islanders should have been there last time, but weren't. So once again they are the team to fear. They have lost little — only Gerry Hart and Pat Price of note in the draft. Otherwise, they are basically intact. In addition, they should still be festering from the gas they took in the playoffs last year and likely will come out firing.

Meanwhile, New York Rangers should also improve and perhaps jump right over the Philadelphia Flyers. That could be the shocker.

Buffalo, likewise, is a club to watch. The Sabres chased Boston Bruins last year but with new bench strength in coaches Scotty Bowman and Roger Neilson, they may also show new life.

Boston Bruins always are tough but they will miss coach Don Cherry, it says here. Atlanta Flames fell apart only at the last minute last year and should do better. They have the firepower and also coach Al MacNeil. And, if only some of his Montreal background rubs off, the Flames may be better placed.

* * *

Pittsburgh Penguins were almost right there last time but they've been dealing a lot and may have lost something. They did lose strength in goal in Herron. St. Louis Blues have some good young players but it's on the back line they're vulnerable.

Detroit Red Wings are due for a resurgence — and have Peter Mahovlich to help supply some of the ingredients. While Los Angeles Kings will have to get more production from other than Marcel Dionne and Dave Taylor if they are to succeed.

Toronto Maple Leafs are the "if" team. The Leafs are going from the Neilson hitting manner to the Floyd Smith skating routine. The hitters they have, but the "iffy part" is that the only skaters they had last year were Darryl Sittler and Borje Salming.

Another problem is they have Harold Ballard and Punch Imlach in charge and their end result may be measured by who decides to run the club and for how long.

* * *

Out west, it's almost certain that Vancouver Canucks will win more. The bad luck with injuries that hit them last year shouldn't repeat. Besides their good young players are one year older.

And, if any one other team figures to be in contention, maybe John Ferguson and Tom McVie can get the job done with the Winnipeg Jets, ex of the World Hockey Association. Who knows.

Then, for a possible upsetter, although their division is just as tough as one they left, try the Washington Capitals. They have been going great guns in pre-season and weren't that bad at times last year either.

And, if you missed the news over the summer, the other three new clubs, which are part of that New Look 21-team NHL are Quebec Nordiques, Edmonton Oilers and Hartford Whalers. Where they will finish is their homework for the winter.

At any rate here's how things will wind up. (Clip it and bet on it, with your money, not mine).

Smythe Division: Chicago, Vancouver, Winnipeg, St. Louis, Colorado and Edmonton.

Patrick Division: New York Islanders, New York Rangers, Atlanta, Philadelphia and Washington.

Adams Division: Boston, Buffalo, Toronto, Quebec and Minnesota.

Norris Division: Montreal, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Los Angeles and Hartford.

Y'r welcome.

Wests collect another jewel

Victoria West added another jewel to its sparkling soccer crown Wednesday by capturing the McGavin Cup at Royal Athletic Park.

Wests, who won the Canadian championship here nearly two weeks ago, edged Victoria Athletics 3-2 in the final of the annual pre-season competition for first division teams in the Vancouver Island Soccer League.

"Just a great game of soccer as far as the fans were concerned," said a happy Vic West coach Bob English.

"We let in a couple of soft goals but don't take anything away from Athletics. They just kept coming at us."

Bob Duncan gave Wests an early lead on a goal off a corner kick at three minutes and Tim Achtzner increased the lead at eight minutes.

Athletics rallied just after half time and stormed back to assume control.

The control faltered momentarily seven minutes into the second half when Gary McL[illegible]n of Wests fired a close-in shot over the cross-bar.

One minute later, John Leier took possession of the ball from a Vic West player, moved in toward Vic West netminder Jim de Goede and banked in a goal off the left post.

A little later, Leier intercepted Greg Mellish as the Vic West player attempted a pass back to de Goede and promptly evened the score.

The deadlock and suspense for around 750 fans ended with about three minutes remaining.

Achtzner moved in on netminder Grant Darley but his shot went astray. Garnet Moen, however, was in the right place at the right time and drilled a line drive past Darley to produce the winning margin.

But all isn't over between the two sides this week.

They meet in a league match starting at 2:15 p.m. Saturday in Athletic Park.

SHOUTING as he is hampered by Victoria Athletics' opponent, Tim Achtzner of Victoria West attempts to control ball during McGavin Cup soccer final Wednesday night at Royal Athletic Park. Wests had tough struggle before earning 3-2 victory on tally with about three minutes remaining.

Marlene leads Canadians

PERTH, Australia (Reuter) — Canadian captain Marlene Streit of Fonthill, Ont., produced some brilliant golf to help her team to a 4½-1½ win over Britain on the opening day of the women's Commonwealth team championship here.

Streit, the former U.S., British and Australian champion, beat British amateur champion Maureen Madill 7 and 6.

Australian captain Lindy Goggin was also in impressive form as her team routed New Zealand 5-1. She beat Brenda Rhodes and was six under par when the match ended on the 11th hole.

Vickery seeking Sonic secret

By JIM CRERAR

Everyone knows that basketball's defensive specialists toil in obscurity while the big scorers grab the adulation and the loot. They're there but, like the old maids locked in the lavatory, nobody seems to care.

So how does a coach motivate them?

Norm Vickery, new assistant to UVic Viking coach Ken Shields, hopes to learn more about the subject from Lenny Wilkins, coach of the Seattle SuperSonics of the National Basketball Association.

If anybody has the answers, it's Wilkins. He has a reputation for motivating players in a game where the superstars who engineer the slam dunks get the headlines while the brakemen in the back court are lucky to get a mention in paragraph 16.

Vickery, in his 15th season of coaching that includes five national collegiate women's championships in six years at the helm of the Laurentian Vees of Sudbury, is in Victoria on a year-long grant from the Coaching Association of Canada to hone some already sharp skills.

He's not certain where it will lead, but a possibility is helping develop national players at the provincial and junior levels through clinics and coaching. He also has the option of returning to Laurentian.

Why did he pick Victoria?

"I could have gone down to the States but it would have cost me a lot of money," he explained.

By coming here, though, Vickery can supplement his grant by working as Shields' assistant and be within striking range of Wilkins and Marv Harshman of the University of Washington Huskies, with whom he also plans to work. He hopes to get to Seattle at least once a week and move there permanently after the Canada West University Athletic Association basketball season ends.

Another factor in Vickery's choice undoubtedly was the fact that Shields played for him 15 years ago when he coached Prince Rupert Rainmakers to a B.C. high school title. The two hooked up again 10 years ago to co-coach UBC Thunderettes to Western Canada intercollegiate and national senior "A" championships.

Vickery's first job is establishing rapport with Wilkins and Harshman. He has already contacted Wilkins and viewed a Sonics' intrasquad game.

Will Vikings use what Vickery learns in Seattle?

"Anything he can get that will benefit us, we'll definitely use," Shields said.

That could include motivation.

"Wilkins seems to get a lot out of his players," Vickery said. "He's done a super job with his guards. He got a lot of mileage out of Dennis Johnson."

Vickery agrees it's probably tougher to motivate a pro than a college player. For example, a player who draws a big paycheque to score 30 points a game may be tempted to work only on scoring to the detriminent on the team.

"There are things more important than being in the limelight," Vickery said.

Like what?

"The success of the team for one. Being able to live together through an 80-game schedule for another."

Wilkins assigns roles to his players, Vickery added. He might assign a player to specialize in rebounding.

"He has to convince him that that's what he has to do to give the team the best chance, even if the player might prefer to score more. We're going to be asking players to accept certain roles right here at UVic."

Motivation isn't the only factor in successful coaching, though.

"A lot of coaches believe recruiting is the only thing," Vickery said. "Then you put them on the floor and motivate them. But in Canada there are not that many players who have all the skills."

At major basketball schools in Canada, Vickery points out, players must have the basics on which to build more sophisticated skills.

In the short term, he added, a team can go a long way on motivation. But in the long haul, you still need the horses.

Whittle fires four-under 68 to lead pros

Vancouver professional Tom Whittle captured individual honors while the five-man team captained by Bob Young of Toronto and Victoria's John Morgan picked off the pro-am laurels as the regrets went out to Bill Wakeham of Cowichan at Wednesday's prelude to the British Columbia Open golf championship.

Whittle, bagging five birdies and going over par only once, finished with a four-under-par 68 at Glen Meadows Golf and Country Club to edge Seattle's Rick Acton by one stroke for individual low-pro honors.

Six pros tied at 70. They were Casey Anderson of Toronto, Bob Hogarth of Royal Colwood, John Colwell of Kingston, Ont., Steve Keeley of Sherwood Park, Alta., and Roger Klatt of Edmonton.

Jim Rutledge of Victoria, Dave Barr of Kelowna, Dan Halldorson of Shilo, Man., Norm Jarvis of Vancouver and Wayne Vollmer of Prince George shared the next spot with 71s.

Young, Morgan, former football star Tommy Joe Coffey, Tony MacLachlan of Glen Meadows and Cec Leenderfsen of Cedar Hill compiled 197 par points to win the team competition.

Wakeham, a two-time winner of the B.C. Open, came up with a bad back, was forced to withdraw after playing only seven holes and does not expect to compete in the three-day, $20,000 event that got under way this morning.

To compensate for Wakeham's withdrawal, tournament officials drew Rick Larson's name out of a hat and used his score to complete the total of the team which also included Colwell, Marty Richards, Dave Walton and Jim Tedlie. The team finished fourth overall.

Pro-am leaders:

197 — Bob Young, John Morgan, Tommy Joe Coffey, Tony MacLachlan and Cec Leenderfsen.

193 — Cec Ferguson, Casey Anderson, Gord Rennie, Gord Smedley, Les Patterson.

191 — Bob Beauchemin, Brian Whitcombe, Alex Robertson, Allan Vetter, M. Henison.

187 — Rick Larson, John Colwell, Marty Richards, Dave Walton, Jim Tedlie.

183 — Roger Klatt, Laurie Lyons, Rick Truman, Mark Callan, Willie Eng.

181 — Steve Keeley, Norm Boden, Garry McLoy, Harry Robinson, Reg Cole.

181 — Bill Wright, Doug Mahovlic, Craig Lawrence, Grant Rutledge, Dave Price.

Tagge returns to Lions

VANCOUVER (CP) — Quarterback Jerry Tagge will be restored to the active roster of British Columbia Lions in time for Saturday's game here against Winnipeg Blue Bombers, a spokesman for the Canadian Football League team says.

Tagge missed three games because of complications from a badly-bruised knee received Aug. 21 at Hamilton against the Tiger-Cats.

Joe Paopao has played quarterback for the Lions in three games this month and the Lions, second in the Western Football Conferece with an 8-2-1 record, won two of the games.

Paopao, who completed a CFL record 18 consecutive passes here last Saturday in a 34-25 win over Toronto Argonauts, has drawn the starting assignment from coach Vic Rapp against Winnipeg.

Saturday's game will feature a halftime presentation to 13-year veteran Jim Young.

Wheaties win WHL opener

While Victoria Cougars prepare for their Western Hockey League opener Saturday against New Westminster Bruins at Memorial Arena, Brandon Wheat Kings posted a 5-1 victory over visiting Great Falls Americans in the league opener Wednesday in Brandon.

Cougars face Dallas Black Hawks, the Vancouver Canucks' Central League affiliate, in an exhibition game starting at 8 tonight.

Centre Dave Chartier scored two unassisted goals to pace Brandon's victory.

Norm Chabot, Brad Kempthorne and Don Gillen also scored for the Wheat Kings, who led 1-0 after the first period and 3-0 after the second.

Tim Bailey spoiled Rick Knickle's shutout bid, deflecting a shot behind the Brandon goaltender midway through the third period, before a crowd of 1,692.

Knickle finished the game with 33 saves. Great Falls netminder Wayne Maduck stopped 43 shots.

Referee Murray Harding of Winnipeg handed out 13 minor penalties, including eight to the Wheat Kings, and each team was assessed one major.

Rookie gets a baptismal

By The Canadian Press

Rookie goaltender Vincent Tremblay of Toronto Maple Leafs underwent a baptism of fire Wednesday night at the hands of Montreal Canadiens.

The defending Stanley Cup champions, who were outplayed and trailed 3-0 midway through the game when Tremblay came in to replace Mike Palmateer, pounced on the young goalie seconds later for their first goal and went on to defeat the Maple Leafs 5-3 in a National Hockey League exhibition game.

Borje Salming's slapshot from the blueline had staked the Leafs to a 1-0 lead in the first period and Rocky Saganiuk added two goals early in the second period to make it 3-0.

But 17 seconds after Tremblay entered the game, Canadiens' Rick Meagher scored to finish off a precise three-way passing play from Mark Napier and Brian Engblom.

Pierre Mondou brought Montreal to within one goal on a tip-in early in the third period, and Bob Gainey tied it at 3-3 with a deflection high into the Toronto net.

Gainey scored his second goal of the game with two minutes to go, and with the Leaf goalie off for an extra attacker. Mario Tremblay flipped home a shot from centre ice for the Canadiens' fifth goal.

Denis Herron, acquired from Pittsburgh Penguins to fill the void created by Ken Dryden's retirement, played the first two periods for Montreal before giving way to Bunny Larocque.

In Vancouver, Bill Flett took advantage of sloppy Vancouver clearing and scored early in the final period to give Edmonton Oilers a 4-4 tie with the Canucks in a loosely-played contest.

Dave Lumley led the Edmonton attack with two goals and Brett Callighen got the other, while the Canucks marksmen were Rick Blight, Don Lever, Jack McIlhargey and Bill Derlago.

Pittsburgh handed Washington Capitals their first defeat in four exhibition games, a 7-4 setback.

Quebec got two goals each from Pierre Plante and Jamie Hislop, with Alain Cote and Dale Hunter adding one each. Glen Sharpley, Al MacAdam, Steve Payne, Ron Zanussi and Craig Hartsburg had the other Minnesota goals.

Right winger Rick Middleton and rookie Tom Songin slapped in shots from close range to lift Boston Bruins to a 2-1 triumph over Buffalo Sabres. Joe Kowal replied for the Sabres.

PAIR OF SCOTS WAITING IN HONG KONG FOR EBB TIDE VISIT

When you're 71 you rate special color

Max Low

It's all strictly above board, of course, but when the Vancouver Island Rugby Union's oldtimers arrive in Hong Kong soon, they'll do a spot of picking up players from the local shores.

That's because Ebb Tide Rugby Club members Dave MacKenzie and Pat MacLachlan, both one-time Scottish internationals, are now based over there with their Hong Kong Independent Schools Services Ltd., which does all the recruiting of students for the independent schools in Canada.

It was MacKenzie, a former headmaster of Brentwood College, and Bob Hutchison of Victoria, actually, who got the Ebb Tide Club going in 1972 when the Wak Wak over-40 club of Japan contacted the Island to find someone to play on a tour of B.C.

The Island side was formed for that one game but the idea of oldtimers getting back into rugby action proved so popular that the club has been going strongly ever since with president Harry Turner at the helm.

For the Ebb Tide players there was a return tour to Japan in 1974 as part of the B.C. Over-40 team, matches here against visiting Japanese sides Fu Wak of Tokio in 1975 and the Wak Waks of Osaka in 1976, and a tour of England and Scotland in 1977. There is talk, too, of a possible trip to Australia and New Zealand some time in the future but right now all Ebb Tide eyes are focused on the tour of Japan and Hong Kong starting Oct. 12.

Some 43 players, including a few guests from other rugby unions, will be among the total tour party of 70 making the trip. Seattle Rugby Club president Johnny Jeynes, Calgary's Cliff Chapman, Dr. Phil Narod and Len Graham of Vancouver and five members of the Toronto XL Rugby Club will play with the Ebb Tide on tour.

The Toronto players will stay on for the trip after the XL Club's tour of B.C. which will see them play the Ebb Tide at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 6, at Macdonald Park.

Ebb Tide will play six games in Japan and two in Hong Kong and stop off in Hawaii for a rest on the way home. Really, though, it's 12 games in Japan as there will be two teams from here — one over 40 and the other over 50 — in action on each occasion.

In over-40 rugby, which is fast becoming popular in England and New Zealand as well as in several other countries, as players get older the color of their shorts changes. Though it doesn't always have the desired effect, this is supposed to indicate to someone who has just turned 40 that perhaps he shouldn't knock hell out of someone who has just turned 60!

And so on their tour, Ebb Tide players between 40 and 49 will wear white shorts and those between 50 and 59 will have black ones. Two players — Alec MacDonald and Bruce McLean — fall in the age 60 to 69 bracket for which red shorts are prescribed.

Then there is that almost legendary figure of oldtimers' rugby, Campbell Forbes.

Campbell is 71 and he is by no means merely a token tourist. No way!

"He's a wing forward who loves his rugby," explains Ebb Tide president Harry Turner. "You can be sure he'll be in on all the action over there. We've played three games so far this year and Campbell has been in all of them and he's so keen he's at every training session."

Having Forbes along, though, did pose the problem of the shorts. He'll wear yellow ones, the club decided.

"Well, we had to come up with a different color for those between 70 and 79 — just for Campbell," Turner says with a grin.

Grant scores try in Canadian win

LILLE, France (Reuter) — Canada's rugby union team gave its best performance of a short European tour with a 14-4 victory over the French B team Wednesday.

Canada resisted early French pressure and opened the scoring after 13 minutes when wing forward Gary Grant of University of Victoria scored an unconverted try near the corner from an inside pass by Spence McTavish of Vancouver.

France equalized five minutes later when Philip Foux forced his way over from a set scrum.

Canada regained the lead when fly-half Gary Hirayama of Vancouver scored under the posts after getting past four French defenders. Jim Donaldson of Richmond added the conversion.

In the second half, Canada again held the upper hand, controlling the loose ball and getting most of the lineout play.

Dave Sinnott scored Canada's third try just before the close.

Yugoslav fighter wins elimination

GORIZIA, Italy (AP) — Yugoslav Mate Parlov, making the best of a defensive fight, won a unanimous but close decision over Tony Mundine of Australia Wednesday night in a semi-final of the World Boxing Council's elimination for its new cruiserweight division.

The 31-year-old Yugoslav, who weighed 189 pounds, now meets Marvin Camel of the United States in the final on Nov. 24. Camel had defeated Mexican David Cabrera in the other semi-final.

The victory brought Parlov's record to 24 wins in 27 fights and made up for a poor performance when he lost the light heavyweight title to Marvin Johnson of the United States last December.

ABC pays $225M for '84 Olympic TV rights

LOS ANGELES (AP) — ABC will deliver 200 hours of 1984 Summer Olympics viewing at a record cost to the network of more than $1 million an hour under an agreement for the exclusive United States rights to cover the Los Angeles Games.

An announcing the award Wednesday, the International Olympic Committee and the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee said ABC agreed to pay $225 million in cash, build an Olympics broadcast centre and provide a worldwide broadcast signal.

"We believe this to be the largest single television agreement ever negotiated," the two Olympic committees said in a joint statement.

The IOC executive board, chaired by Lord Killanin, is expected to approve the agrement on Oct. 25 when it meets in Nagoya, Japan, they said.

In 1976, ABC's telecast of the Summer Games helped propel the network from its perennial third-place spot behind CBS and NBC in prime-time to a position of dominance in that area. The results were dramatic enough to prompt ratings-starved NBC to bid about $100 million to win the rights to the 1980 Moscow Summer Games.

Here's what ABC agreed to provide in 1984, according to Roone Arledge, president of ABC news and sports:

— $100 million for the U.S. television rights.

— $125 million to the Los Angeles Olympic committee for production and support services, which could include non-broadcast areas such as transportation and providing results of the contests.

— A "clean broadcast signal" for foreign users.

— An Olympics broacast centre where the broadcast signal would be picked up.

ABC's costs beyond the four areas outlined above "could exceed another $100 million, but much of that will be recoverable," he said.

AMERICAN MOTORS INTRODUCES THE AUTOMATIC 4-WHEEL DRIVE AUTOMOBILE.
EAGLE!

AMC EAGLE-THE FIRST FULL LINE OF COMPACT AUTOMOBILES THAT COMBINE THE SECURITY OF AUTOMATIC 4-WHEEL DRIVE WITH THE COMFORT OF FAMILY CARS.

Why is automatic 4-wheel drive such an important feature in a family automobile?

In one word: control.

The AMC Eagle's advanced 4-wheel drive system automatically distributes power to the wheels that need it most.

So you always get maximum traction and stability when you're driving in snow, rain, on icy surfaces, unpaved roads or under normal driving conditions.

Above all, you get peace of mind for yourself and your family. And that's important.

It's good to have control and security, but what about comfort and style?

The AMC Eagle gives you most everything you'd expect in a family automobile.

Its distinctive exterior appearance compliments the quiet, luxuriously appointed interior.

Eagle is available in a 2-door sedan, 4-door sedan, and 4-door wagon.

And the 4-wheel drive is automatic, so there are no hubs to lock or levers to shift. It's there all the time, automatically.

What kind of warranty comes with the AMC Eagle?

Like all AMC automobiles, Eagle is backed by American Motors' exclusive Buyer Protection Plan, the industry's most comprehensive 12 month/20,000 km warranty.

And for 1980, there's even more.

All 1980 American Motors' automobiles have galvanized steel body components in critical areas, plastic fender inner-liners, and AMC's exclusive Ziebart® factory rustproofing. We back it up with a full 5-year No-Rust-Thru™ Warranty with no mileage limitation.

And every 1980 AMC automobile features an aluminized exhaust system.

Best of all, it's all included in the price of the automobile. See your AMC Dealer for complete details.

Since you've read this far, how can you resist a test drive?

There's never been an automobile quite like the AMC Eagle. So pick a day, a bad weather day is just fine, head for your nearest AMC Dealer, and take an Eagle for a ride.

You're in for a whole new experience in driving.

. AMC, Eagle, Buyer Protection Plan and No-Rust-Thru are trade marks of American Motors Corporation. In Canada, American Motors (Canada) Limited is a licensed user. Ziebart® is a registered trademark of Ziebart International Corporation. Roof rack and right side mirror optional at extra cost.

Foreign stars ignore golf series

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A change in format, designed to bring in more foreign entrants, backfired and has served as a source of some mild embarrassment for the World Series of Golf.

All three European eligibles — including British Open champion Severiano Ballesteros of Spain — and a Japanese pro declined to compete in the $400,000 affair that begins today, and a South African pleaded an injury.

As a result, the PGA had to go to the American tour money-winning list, down to the 26th position, to fill the field of 36 pros that is mandatory under the new format. One more spot could be created by the withdrawal of Jerry McGee, a two-time winner this year.

He has a painful bone bruise on his foot and Wednesday said he didn't know whether he'd be able to compete.

If he does, it will be either wearing a soft sneaker or an over-sized shoe on the injured foot.

"I'd play in sneakers for $5,000, but I'm not so sure I'll do it for $1,800,'' McGee said.

The figures represent the last-place money award for this rich event. Last year, with 24 pros in the field, last money was $5,000. This year, with the field expanded by 50 percent, last money is $1,800.

"I can't blame the Japanese or (South African Hugh) Baiocci,'' McGee said. They can't get here for $1,800.

Women's tourney dropped

DETROIT (AP) — After two years on the Ladies Professional Golf Association schedule, the Lady Stroh's Open tournament will be discontinued in 1980 by the Stroh Brewery Co.

This year's $150,000 Lady Stroh's Open in June drew 40,000 spectators and was hampered by continual rain. The $150,000 tournament was won by newcomer Vicki Fergon. The 1978 Lady Stroh's was attended by 60,000 fans and was won by Sandra Post.

Poland ties Germany

CHORZOW, Poland (Reuter) — East Germany, defending with desperate bravery, held Poland to a 1-1 draw Wednesday, keeping alive their chances in the European soccer championship but dealing a heavy blow to those of Poland.

The Poles only avoided total disaster when substitute defender Henryk Wieczorek equalized in the 77th minute after Rainhard Haefner had put the visitors into a 63rd minute lead.

RCA's most advanced video cassette recorder

SelectaVision 600 now has more of what you want.

Like more time. The 600 allows you to record up to six hours on a single cassette. That means a virtual end to cassette-changing interruptions or missed endings when you're recording with the automatic timer.

And you save money on tape, too.

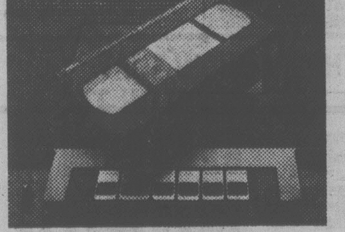
A 7-day programmable timer lets you record your favorite shows even when you're away. By touching a few buttons, you can program your Selections into the timer and the rest is automatic. The 600 will turn itself on at kickoff time, silently record the game, then turn itself off. When it's time for your second selection, the 600 turns itself to the proper channel and starts recording again – automatically. You can preset as many as four different shows or even the same program for seven straight days.

A new remote pause/channel control lets you edit out unwanted programming from over 18 feet away and also lets you change channels – even if your present TV set isn't equipped for remote control.

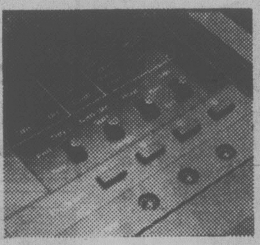
An ingenious tape indexing system lets you skip to the beginning of the next show.

And then there's all the features that have helped make RCA SelectaVision one of the best selling VCR's in America.

It's all there in the new 600. Go see it at your RCA dealer.



Third speed gives 6 hours recording on a single cassette.



7-day Memory Timer lets you Program shows up to a week in advance.

A slice from her own life in Shirley Jones' latest

Scott's World

By Vernon Scott

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — For Shirley Jones, starring in Shirley is a case of deja vu, a slice of her real life invested in an hour-long drama-comedy TV series.

The blonde singer-actress plays a single parent rearing three children under difficult circumstances. It is altogether unlike her role in the defunct Partridge Family situation comedy series in which she starred for four years.

Only five years ago Shirley found herself divorced (from the late Jack Cassidy) and faced with bringing up her three sons by herself.

In the new show she is the mother of three youngsters — two daughters and a son approximately the same ages as her own offspring at the time of the divorce.

As Shirley Miller she is a sophisticated New York widow starting a new life in a small California town on the shores of Lake Tahoe.

While Shirley may not be biographical, it's close enough.

At least one episode might have been plucked directly from Shirley's private life. Her fictional character establishes a relationship with a man for the first time since her husband's death.

Her children's reactions vary, just as they did in real life when Shirley began dating her present husband, former comedian Marty Ingels. One of her sons refused to accept the fact that his mother could possibly look at another man.

"Shirley Miller and I have so much in common this is a very easy role for me to play," said the Academy Award winner (best supporting actress in Elmer Gantry circa 1960).

"The producers have given me a great deal of latitude in contributing to the scripts. Naturally, I've included some of the traumas from my own life dealing with a woman alone making adjustments to new circumstances in life.

"NBC, which is hungry for comedy, wanted to put a lot of jokes in the show. I've been fighting them on that. There's plenty of humor but basicall it's about a widow fighting for survival. I think there are a lot of women, especially independent working women with children, who are eager to see what happens to other women faced with the same problems.

To be sure, Shirley's personal circumstances were altogether different from those in the TV role.

She was, for openers, a movie star. Her stepson, David Cassidy, costarred with her in The Partridge Family at the time of her estrangement from the senior Cassidy. Her son Shaun became a TV teen-age idol in his own right.

Shirley Jones' real home is a Beverly Hills mansion. Shirley Miller lives in a three-story Victorian house.

'Our Gracie' to millions of fans

From grimy Lancashire mill town to Buckingham Palace and Capri

Times News Services

CAPRI — Singer and actress Gracie Fields, the Lancashire mill lass who sang her way into the hearts of millions, died today at her villa on this scenic Mediterranean island. She was 81.

Miss Fields had spent six weeks in hospital this summer suffering from bronchial pneumonia and seemed to have recovered, her manager and agent, Lillian Aza, said in London.

But she collapsed during breakfast and efforts by her husband, Boris Alperovici, to revive her with oxygen failed, Aza said.

Only seven months ago, the Queen Mother made the much-loved singer-actress a Dame Commander of the Order of the British Empire in a pomp-filled ceremony in the ballroom of Buckingham Palace.

But although she was a Dame, she will be remembered in Britain as she had been known for generations, as "Our Gracie."

GRACIE FIELDS

Grace Stansfield was born in a room above a fish-and-chip shop in the grimy Lancashire mill town of Rochdale on Jan. 9, 1898. Her father was a mechanic and her mother a seamstress.

She worked for several years in the mines but by the 1930s was known as the "richest working woman in the world," earning about $500,000 a year from her films, shows and records.

But fame and fortune didn't turn her head; she retained her simple tastes and a reputation for generosity.

She became a star when she appeared with her first husband, comedian Archie Pitt, in Mr. Tower of London at the London Alhambra.

Some people had predicted her broad Lancashire accent would be her ruin on the stage but she turned it into an asset that was to earn her millions of pounds. She was credited with teaching the world to "speak Lancasheer."

Her decades in show business included 10 royal command performances and international fame with tours of the United States, Europe and South Africa.

Her first big hit film, Sally in our Alley, one of the first talkies, made more money than any other British picture of its vintage and gave her the tune that became her theme song.

In 1936, the woman whose voice was once described by a critic as "a cross between a yodelling song and a Bach cantata" was voted the most popular British screen star.

Her hit songs, such as Sally and Walter, Walter, Lead Me To The Altar, brought her huge record sales. She was believed to have sold more records in Britain in the mid-1920s than any other artist.

She was divorced from Pitt in 1940 and two months later married Monty Banks, otherwise known as Mario Bianchi, an Italian film director. The two of them flew thousands of miles during the Second World War to entertain Allied troops and raised more than $2 million for charities.

After her second husband died in 1950, she married Boris Alperovici on Capri, the island she loved and made her home. She became an Italian citizen in 1959. She had no children.

When she was 80, she crowned her career with a royal variety performance before the Queen Mother in Rochdale at the Gracie Fields Theatre, named in her honor.

Fields used to recall she lived her most beautiful moment as an actress one day in the Pacific.

"I was in Bougainville, in the Pacific, and I was singing for the troops. There was a storm outside and my voice was almost drowned out by the rain and the thunders.

"All of a sudden I noticed the chaplain on the stage asking me to stop singing. I stopped and everyone in the place became attentive.

"The chaplain announced that the war was over.

"I started singing the Pater Noster, and the soldiers sang with me in a chorus.

"I distinctly recall that the soldiers' voices swelled above the noise of the storm."

Two to Anne

TORONTO (CP) — Anne Murray won two of the top awards at the Canadian country music awards, taking the prize for this year's best country artist and top female singer.

Other winners included Eddie Eastman, The Family Brown, Wayne Rostead, Marie Bottrell and Ralph Carlson and Country Mile.

UVic Cinderella double first

By AUDREY JOHNSON

A major piece of musical history for this area was made Wednesday at the University Centre Auditorium.

Indeed, the University of Victoria's production of the Rossini comic opera Cinderella was a double first.

It was a first time for Victoria that a concert version of a full-length opera has been produced on such a lavish scale.. But most importantly it marked the first occasion for any university in Canada, that such a production had been taped for later viewing on the American Public Broadcasting System.

The auditorium got steamy-warm under the full undimmed lights necessary to the several KCTS cameras, but more than a thousand Victorians didn't seem to mind for more than two-and-a-half hours. They loved it all. And why not?

The opera is delightfully tuneful and brilliant in the best Rossini style; most of the singing and some of the acting was of prime quality, the orchestra and chorus were good and conductor George Corwin sustained the flow and rhythmic intensity, keeping the whole ensemble firmly knit and balanced throughout.

Only fleetingly at one prestissimo ensemble passage was there a bare suspicion that the secure anneal might weaken. But Corwin held it firmly and the impression was gone almost as soon as it was received.

To describe this production as "concert opera" is to do it less than justice. The phrase suggests a cast in evening dress, seated or standing, singing through the opera in true concert style.

In fact, this production came as close as was physically and financially possible, to a fully mounted performance.

The principals were costumed, there were properties and furnishings. The various scenes were staged and performed under the direction of UVic theatre department's Carl Hare.

Considering that the orchestra — made up of music faculty and senior students — shared the stage with the cast and that the stage was necessarily divided by the conducting podium, Hare achieved maximum success in relating the two performance areas.

The device of having two well-costumed and automaton-like footmen handle all props and costume modifications worked extremely well.

The florid nature of Rossini's operatic writing has inhibited production of many of his works. Voices capable of handling such bravura arias and ensembles as Cinderella contains, do not abound.

This is especially true of the role of Cinderella which is written for one of the rarest of voices, the coloratura contralto.

The chances of anyone hearing a more impressive performance than Canadian operatic star Judith Forst's in the role is remote.

Considered one of the world's outstanding mezzo sopranos, Forst has the rich beauty of a contralto in her low range coupled with an incredible virtuosity in dealing with the continuallly bravura singing the role demands.

The voice is full and strong, musically alluring, effortless and expressive. Forst met every demand of this virtuoso part and was as fresh and agile in the final brilliant rondo as she was in the opening phases.

Another thrilling individual performance, both musically and dramatically, was provided by Bernard Turgeon. The glowing and opulent sound of this bass-baritone voice is matched by a velvet-smooth vocal line that has great flexibility.

An expressive face and body and strong comedy sense made Turgeon's performance as the masquerading valet, memorable.

Bass-buffo Herbert Beattie's Don Magnifico (the stepfather in this version) was another impressively agile excellently sung and acted performance. Donnie Ray Albert's robust resonant bass and the pleasing voices of the step-sisters, Canadian soprano and mezzo-soprano Iris Fraser and Gabrielle Lavigne enhanced the ensemble.

The role of the prince was sung by tenor David Astor. The voice is flexible enough and at times reveals strength but on the whole seemed thin in comparison to others in the cast and blended less well in the concerted numbers which are a particular glory of the work.

The final sextet, nevertheless, was a triumph of bravura singing — a triumph for all concerned.

Crash rash clogs city

A rash of traffic accidents — one of which backed up Point Ellice Bridge traffic for a kilometre — kept police hopping overnight.

The bridge mishap occurred about 6:30 p.m. when a 28-year-old cyclist collided with a car in the middle of the bridge on Bay Street.

Nina Weller, 1608 Quadra, was taken to Victoria General Hospital where she was treated for head bruises and released.

The driver of the car was Ruth Cameron, 62, of 1601 Jubilee.

The accident happened towards the end of the evening rush hour and tied up traffic that was re-routed because of the temporary closure of the Johnson Street Bridge.

A four-car rear-end collision at Quadra and Hillside at 8 p.m. sent one person to hospital with chest injuries.

Terry Betts, 35, of 2857 Quadra, was admitted to Victoria General Hospital.

Two other persons, Tracy Weaving, 18, of 2654 Fernwood, and Bruce McLeod, 17, of Shawnigan Lake, received minor cuts and bruises in the mishap which caused more than $3,000 damage to the four vehicles.

A little more than an hour later two cars collided at Douglas and Field resulting in $1,500 damages.

The driver of one of the cars, Lennie Thompson, 26, of 723 Field, received face cuts. The driver of the other, Daniel James Ryan, 19, of 3937 Carey, was uninjured.

About $2,000 damage was done when a car slammed into a light standard at Douglas and Dallas shortly after midnight. The driver, Owen William Fleck, 21, of 340 St. James, was not hurt.

Police were unable to explain the series of mishaps but noted traffic, for some reason, was particularly heavy overnight throughout the city.

He said part of the problem may be the closure of bridge but that wouldn't explain the mishaps later in the evening.

The bridge will be closed until 10 a.m. Wednesday for structural repairs.

Motorists from Esquimalt and the western communities are asked to use the Tillicum route into the city, leaving the Point Ellice bridge for Vic West residents.

The woman who underwent the first lower spine replacement operation is now able to sit up with the help of a special cast, University of Maryland Hospital officials report. Jessie Thomas, 33, who had an 8-inch section of her lumbar spine replaced by a metal rod , was placed in a partial cast that will "allow her to be in a more or less seated position." The cast will permit Mrs. Thomas to sit up in bed and eventually to sit in a wheelchair.

Mamie Eisenhower is in stable condition after suffering a stroke at her farm home in Gettysburg. Julie Nixon Eisenhower, wife of David Eisenhower, Mamie's grandson, said the 82-year-old former first lady has been bedridden for several months and has given up all activity but reading.

Mamie

Photographer David Hume Kennerly has charged that the Carter administration has imposed a virtual blackout on photographic coverage of the U.S. presidency more complete than it was "at the height of Richard Nixon's administration." Kennerly, White House photographer during the Ford administration, says the world has been cheated out of two-and-a-half years of visual history."By running for president he gives up his private life."

Joseph Hoffman once ordered two special concert grand pianos from Steinway. They were the only ones of their kind, so Efrem Zimbalist and jazz pianist Hazel Scott were lucky eventually to acquire them. But Miss Scott's luck has run out. Her piano was stored in Paris, and she finally found an apartment big enough to hold it and ordered it shipped to New York. It got as far as the dock — where handlers dropped it. Said a tearful Miss Scott: "How can you put a value on such a thing?"

The director of the Miss Illinois pageant, accused of improperly doling out kisses, pinches and flowers to several contestants, says he will end his 18-year-affiliation with the event. Said Richard Schiller, a 45-year-old lawyer: "I may have also asked a girl or two out back in the days when I was single — if that constitutes improper sexual advance, we're having a problem with definition."

abby

Dear Abby:

The practice of 'saving seats' needs some guidelines much like the guidelines for tipping. I recently attended a graduation exercise where two people arrived early and 'saved' 20 seats in the front row for the rest of the family who arrived one minute before the activities started!

At least 500 people walked down to the front row during that time, thinking those seats were available.

Because no guidelines exist with regard to this practice, all persons honored the 'Sorry, these seats are taken,' explanation.

May I suggest a rule? One person may save one seat only in public places.

Because this situation occurs frequently, your comments would be greatly appreciated.

No Seats

Dear Seats:

Your suggestion makes a lot of sense. But a trend has to start somewhere; I'm willing. How about you? Readers!

Dear Abby:

I am married to a very affectionate man. Don't get me wrong. I'm not complaining; I'm lucky, but I think there's a time and place for everything. My problem is that Henry will pinch me on the behind, or make a grab for me in front of the kids, and it makes me very uncomfortable.

I don't mind being patted and pawed when Henry and I are alone, but I get embarrassed when he does it in front of the kids. When I tell him how I feel about this, he says it's good for the kids.

I agree, kids should witness love and affection between parents, but isn't there a limit? And if so, where is it?

The Object

Dear Object:

Love and affection are indeed beautiful. And children who witness it at home are blessed. But the limit is reached when you begin to feel uncomfortable.

Dear Abby:

You told North America First, who objected to our taking in the boat people:

'Unless you are a direct descendant of the North American Indian, you wouldn't be here unless your forebears hadn't sought refuge from another country.'

Am I to assume that you do not recognize over 20 million blacks on this continent who are not descendants of native people?

Offended

Dear Offended:

You are right. I apologize for having overlooked the fact that your ancestors were brought here in chains — to the everlasting shame of those who were guilty of such outrageously inhumane conduct.

Prescription: Play therapy

By MICHAEL HUGHES

A stay in hospital can be traumatic for a child and rough on the parents as well.

For the young person there is the strange surrounding, the fear that comes with the uncertainty of what is happening. Some have to deal with prolonged pain for the first time in their lives.

The parents have to cope with commuting back and forth from home and a hospital which is likely not geared to having them around on a full-time basis.

When it is all over, the experience can leave some scars.

But it need not, and there is a group of people working in the health care/social work field in the Capital Regional District prepared to do something about the problem.

The group is called the Health Committee for the International Year of the Child.

The committee's goal is to reduce the stress of the hospital situation for children and promote a more positive experience.

The first phase of the project to focus attention on the non-medical needs of children was the taping of a Cable 10 T.V. program which has been shown on seven occasions in the Greater Victoria area.

The second part of the project is a fair or Parents' Day on Child Health: preparation for health care experiences, to be held this Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the G.R. Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children, 3970 Haro.

Committee member Sherry Pearson, a community health nurse, said in a recent interview the general goal of the fair is to convince those in the community, both parents and professionals, of the need for more attention being given to the non-medical needs of children in hospitals.

Specifically, the push will be to establish a local chapter of a North American-wide group called the Association for the Care of Children in Hospital.

The fair will be informal and unstructured, open to parents and children.

There will be activities for children such as story-telling, puppet shows and films on health care experiences.

For parents and professionals there will be demonstrations, displays, films and resource people, focussing on child development, behavior and health care.

Examples of play therapy will be given, Pearson said, explaining that in playing certain games children will often express their fears and anxieties.

"Being in hospital is pretty hard for adults but for children it is even more frightening," she said.

Attention will also be given to the need for facilities in hospitals for parents who want to stay with their children.

None of the area's major hospitals have such facilities as care-by-parent units, and the committee wants to make sure these things are provided in the new Helmcken Road hospital when it is built.

Hopefully the fair will also show parents what health facilities are available in the area and teach those children attending what to expect if they have to go to hospital.

"There is a lot the community can do to make the child's hospital experience a positive one," Pearson said. "It doesn't have to be a negative experience."

Yes, chicken soup really does work

By DR. L.L. COLEMAN

I know all the gags about eating hot chicken soup. It was my grandmother's favorite remedy when anyone came down with a cold or sore throat. We never really took her seriously, but do you know that I now find myself giving chicken soup to my children when they have colds and it actually seems to make them feel better. Is it all in the mind?

Mrs. R.B.

Dear Mrs. B:

It sometimes takes decades for scientists to catch up with grandmothers! I have tremendous faith in their intuitive "scientific" knowledge.

Lets examine why hot chicken soup is, indeed, beneficial. It is hot, and the heat is definitely helpful and soothing to anyone with a cold or sore throat. It consists of fluid, and fluid is always an important contributor to people with colds and fever. It contains nourishment, which is also essential for patients whose vitality is diminished by and acute infection. It is certainly easy to digest and is tempting to the taste.

And now, your gandmother's dictum has been substantiated by Dr. Marvin A. Sacker, who studied this exact problem at the Mt. Asini Medical Centre in Florida. He and his associated found drinking hot chicken soup increases the flow of mucus in the nose. He found, too, that drinking hot water can do the same thing, but not to as high a degree as hot chicken soup.

The enhanced effect of the soup is thought to be related to the aromatic compounds it contains.

Maybe there should be a special Nobel Prize in Medicine . . . for grandmothers only!

Dear Doctor:

For the past two years I have had pain at the base of my spine. I haven't been able to get any relief. I know that I never hurt it. X-rays did not show anything unusual. It is more bothersome than painful. I wish I could get rid of it.

Mr. N.N.R.

Dear Mr. R.:

In the absence of positive X-ray findings, a condition known as "coccydynia" should be considered. This is a pain in the region of the coccyx bone (tail bone) at the base of the spine,

Dislocation of contusion of the coccyx bone by injury may have occured, even though you don't recall it.

In some instances, the pain is relieved by injection of a local anesthetic. Injections of cortisone, also, can relieve andy inflamation that may be present in the area of the coccyx.

Five slices of bread provides about 25 per cent of an adult's daily protein requirement. In addition to protein, bread offers "B" vitamins, iron, and calcium at low cost.

Bread is probably served most often in the form of a sandwich. Combined with peanut butter, cheese, or ham, it is the basis of nearly all Canadian lunch pails. In the morning, a slice of toasted bread is practically a tradition for those who don't skip breakfast.

Individual diet needs change

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Dr. Jean Mayer
Dr. Johanna Dwyer

Q: In a recent column on vegetarianism you suggested that at certain times when nutrient needs are high, such as during pregnancy or following a serious illness, it might be particularly helpful to consult a registered dietitian. Can you please tell me how I can find a dietitian who is really qualified?

A: A good place to begin your inquiry is with your provincial or local health unit. They will know if there are dietary counsellors in hospitals and health centers near you. They may also know of qualified dietitians in private practice who provide nutrition counseling services. Similarly, nutritionists at the provincial health ministry can direct you toward the type of help you need. Many provincial and some district dietetic associations now have telephone numbers listed in the yellow pages of the phone directory. These organizations can be particularly helpful in providing you with the names of consulting dietitians in private practice in your area. And, finally, an increasing number of qualified dietitians also are now listed in the yellow pages.

We should emphasize that if you have any question about the credentials of the dietitian you decide to visit, ask if he or she is a member of an accredited professional association for dietitians, or is a registered dietitian. In order to be a member, you must have completed a specified amount of education, be experienced, and regularly fulfill well-defined requirements for continuing education.

Q: Is there any special diet that is effective in the treatment of psoriasis?

A: There have been several attempts to find a special diet which might be effective in treating psoriasis, but they have met with little success. At one time it was thought that eating meat adversely affected psoriasis. One study reported scratchy skin condition improved when patients were put on a synthetic low-protein diet and then got worse when they went back to a high-protein meat diet. However, a subsequent study failed to duplicate these findings.

Another theory held that improvement might result if the amount of the essential amino acid tryptophan were restricted. To that end, a diet was developed in which turkey, thought to be low in tryptophan, was the main source of protein. Again, reports of dramatic success could not be duplicated. Moreover, turkey was actually found to contain significant amounts of tryptophan.

Similarly, it has been suggested that limiting the amount of a sulfur-containing amino acid called taurine which is present in animal-protein foods might be an effective dietary treatment. But, again, early reports of success have been questioned. And, finally, both zinc supplements and low-calorie weight reduction diets have been proposed but have failed to live up to their claims to inhibit psoriasis.

Despite the fact that there is no known nutritional treatment for psoriasis, advertisements for special diets and nutritional supplements to treat psoriasis appear in the popular press with predictable regularity. The plain fact is, however, that none of these remedies work. They are quite simply a waste of money.

Q: Our daughter is 7 and somewhat overweight. My husband says she's fine and that she'll outgrow her fatness, but I'm quite concerned. Which one of us is right?

A: There are many factors which can affect whether an individual child who is somewhat overweight will continue to have a weight problem.

On a statistical basis, fatness in early childhood appears to be strongly linked with weight problems in adolescence. A recently reported analysis of data from the U.S. Health Examination Surveys showed that childhood fatness — as measured by skinfold thickness — is the most predictive factor for those who will become fat by adolescence. These data, obtained from 2,177 children chosen to be representative of all American youngsters, also indicated that childhood fatness as a predictor of overweight in adolescence had little to do with a child's rate of growth or sexual maturation as well as whether a boy or a girl, black or white, or coming from a specific economic level.

Obviously, your concern that time alone will not take care of the problem does scientific support. Rather than institute a do-it-yourself weight education program for your daughter, however, we would urge you to discuss the problem with your pediatrician. He can help you work out a program of diet and exercise which can help your daughter achieve her ideal weight and at the same time provide her with the calories and other essential nutrients she needs in order to grow and develop.

Baked beans are greatly valued for their nutrition density

Nutrition density worth study

NUTRITION MATTERS

Dr. Elizabeth Bright-See and Jane Hope

Something interesting is happening to the way we're eating these days!

We don't seem to be eating as many calories — yet more and more of us are putting on the pounds. Today, the average woman eats about 1600 calories each day — way less than the whopping 3000 her grandmother ate. Men aren't eating as much either.

It's certainly important that we aren't eating as much because we are far less active than our grandparents were.

But, there's danger in a lowered food intake. You may end up not getting enough essential nutrients. We don't recommend that you eat more food to get these nutrients.

What you need to learn is to shop wisely — for good nutrition "bargains" or foods that give good nutrients value for the calories invested. This relationship of nutrients to calories is called the "nutrient density" of the food. It means how many vitamins, minerals or protein you are getting for the calories in a spoonful, plateful or day-full of food.

For example, half an orange and a whole lemon meringue pie have about the same amount of vitamin C (25 to 30 mg). But the orange will supply 100 mg of vitamin C for every 100 calories and the pie only one. The orange is therefore more "nutrient dense". But which one is the best calorie buy? The lemon pie — for somebody like a lumberjack who needs six to seven thousand calories a day.

A slice of white enriched bread and a Danish pastry have about the same amount of iron and protein. But the Danish has about four times the number of calories. Can you afford this calorie-cost to get the nutrients?

Most of us have to live within a food budget. Now we should learn to live within a calorie budget to maintain a normal weight. With a certain amount of calories, you can "buy" your nutrients. Would you pay 90 dollars for a marshmallow or 235 dollars for a piece of chocolate cake? That's what you would have to pay if you were charged a dollar for every calorie.

Think of calories in the same way you think of money. Consider how much you pay — in calories — for the nutrients your body needs.

Inflation has hit foods — in terms of calories as well as dollars. The calorie cost of a food can be increased without giving any added value in nutrients. For example, skim milk supplies calcium, protein, vitamin A and D, and riboflavin at a cost of 90 calories a cup. When milk becomes a milk shake, it "costs" over 200 calories a cup. The calorie cost of an ounce of potatoes goes up 10 times when they are converted to potato chips.

Some foods, such as hard candies, soft drinks are expensive in calories and have little or no vitamins, minerals or protein. They're the "Caution Foods". It doesn't mean that they should never be eaten — use them after you've "bought" all the nutrients you need with other foods and if you can still afford them in your energy cost.

Some lucky people have big daily energy budgets and don't have a problem getting nutrients. For example, teenage boys are generally better nourished than their female counterparts. They probably don't know any more about nutrition. They simply eat more and get the necessary nutrients through sheer volume of food (and luck) rather than good management.

We're geared to a life style that includes individualized eating. Therefore, we must be aware of the nutrients — and their energy cost — in the foods we munch all day long. Nutrient density, after you get used to the idea, is a good way of looking at foods.

Here are some good nutrient "bargains":

Protein: Beans, peas, milk (especially two per cent and skim), eggs, fish, poultry, lean meat.

Vitamin C: Citrus fruits, green peppers, canteloupe, strawberries, vitaminized apple juice.

Vitamin A: Fortified milk, green and yellow fruits and vegetables.

Toy is a scream, dentists say ouch!

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Dental Association is concerned that a recently-marketed toy called Toothache may be psychologically and physically harmful to children and would like to see it yanked from store shelves, its executive director, Hubert Drouin, said Tuesday.

The $9 toy, manufactured by Waddington Games Ltd. of Bramalea, Ont., encourages children to pull as many plastic teeth as possible from the mouth of a cardboard person sitting in a plastic dentist's chair without setting off a scream-like noise.

Drouin said the association is "very concerned with the inference that visits to dental offices are painful" and will support any protest to the federal consumer and corporate affairs department by the Toronto-based Ontario Dental Association.

"We are also concerned that young children may choke if they swallow the teeth," he said.

An ODA spokesman said Monday the department, which administers the Hazardous Products Act, will soon be officially notified of its concern. The association will also ask the company to yank the toy from store shelves.

Drouin said he has not examined a Toothache himself but agrees with the ODA's objections to the toy.

The ODA also said in a recent news release that it is "unprincipled to encourage unnecessary and unfounded fear in a child."

But Alfons Rubbens, president of Waddington Games, does not agree.

"First of all, I'm absolutely puzzled that any organization would attack a product of ours without first coming to see us about it," he said. "They (the ODA) just went to the media out of the blue.

"I don't see anything wrong with the game. It's a fun thing — a joke. After all, kids have been playing doctor and nurse for years."

He said the toy is recommended for children six years of age or older.

A spokesman for the Canadian Toy Testing Council said such a recommendation leaves the manufacturer in the clear by making parents responsible for supervising younger children who play with the toy.

Fat problems face research

HALIFAX (CP) — How and why do arteries harden? And why is fat stored safely as reserve energy in some people while in others it causes heart disease and premature senility?

A small group of researchers at the Dalhousie Medical School's biochemistry department is studying such questions on a $315,000 grant from the Medical Research Council of Canada.

Dr. David Rubinstein, recently appointed head of the biochemistry department, brings the grant and the research program to Dalhousie from his former posting at McGill University.

The goal is to find out what role fat plays in development of atherosclerosis — hardening of the arteries. The researchers are interested both in the amount of fat present in hardened arteries and in how it is carried in the blood and deposited.

The basis of their work are surveys carried out in the 1950s and 1960s on large segments of the United States population. The surveys implicated a variety of risk factors in heart disease — diet, smoking, alcohol, high blood pressure and cholesterol levels in the blood.

One factor alone does not cause cardiovascular diseases, but a combination of factors increases the chance of heart attack or stroke in susceptible individuals.

"Subsequent studies in several parts of the world are trying to determine if fat levels in the blood can be correlated with signs of hardening of the arteries and heart disease," Rubinstein says.

"While the level of fat or cholesterol in the blood is significant, the way it is transported by the blood from and to the liver is most important in the subsequent development of atherosclerosis."

Some food is converted immediately to energy but much of it, especially the carbohydrates, is converted by the liver into fat. The blood then carries it to various parts of the body and deposits it.

'Seeds' of adult illness planted in childhood

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Seeds of killer diseases that sprout in adulthood are present in many of the world's 10-to-14 year olds, reports the American Health Foundation.

Scientists from the United States and 14 other nations described the "seeds" as bad health effects from junk food and unhealthy lifestyles.

This means cancer, heart disease and stroke "will be even more prevalent when today's generation of children reach maturity," said the foundation's president, Ernst Wynder.

Wynder, a world-famous epidemiologist, said the ominous trend could be turned around if each nation's health and school officials put a high priority on giving school children instruction in good diet and lifestyles.

"We regard this need not as a privilege of a child, but his right," Wynder said.

Wynder is the scientist who first linked heavy cigarette smoking and lung cancer. He now talks in an evangelical way about switching to low-fat diets in the United States as a means of preventing certain cancers, including breast cancer.

The downbeat report on the world's children had an upbeat side. Fifty young "good health ambassadors" from 14 nations told the Foundation's International Conference of ways to sell other kids on good health habits.

They suggested getting the kids involved — "make them take responsibility for what happens to their health."

The foundation report is based is first cross-national evaluation of risk factors for cancer, heart disease and stroke among kids. It is based on cholesterol and blood pressure readings and other health indicators among some 15,000 boys and girls.

They were examined as part of a "Know Your Body" program in selected schools in Finland, France, Greece, Italy, Yugoslavia, the Netherlands, Norway, Kuwait, the West Germany, Kenya, Nigeria, Japan, Taiwan and Thailand.

In the United States, participants were from schools in New York City and nearby Westchester County, as well as Evanston, Ill.; and Kansas City, Mo.

Findings:

—Of the 13-year-olds, Finnish children had the highest cholesterol age 19, 197. This nation also has one of the highest rates of coronary heart disease among adults. The nation's diet includes butter, whole milk and cheese.

—Nigerian children had very low cholesterol levels, 136. Nigeria has a very low coronary disease rate and a not-so-high consumption of diary products.

—Children from southern Italy also had low cholesterol levels, average 146. Theirs is a low fat diet.

—Boys and girls from Japan have cholesterol levels nearly as high as those of U.S. children. The average cholesterol level for a child from New York was 160. Scientists were surprised by the nearly identical cholesterol levels in the Japanese children and said it is probably a result of Japan adopting Western dietary habits.

—Occasional cigarette smoking wwas less prevalent among United States children than among their French and German counterparts. Frrench boys smoke more frequently than French girls, while the opposite is true in Germany and the U.S.

—Relatively low obesity was found in Finland, Netherlands, and particularly, in Kenya.

—West German boys were the tallest among those studied, averaging 64 inches. By comparison, New York boys averaged 62.8 inches; and French, 61.2.

Couples therapy growing

WINNIPEG (CP) — Married couples are realizing they need a little help from their friends to make their lives complete, says a specialist in family therapy.

"There are needs that a spouse simply is not able to satisfy, and it is absolutely essential for us to have close relationships with other people as well" says Prof. Lillian Esses.

"People more and more are realizing that one cannot expect a single other individual to satisfy all their human needs."

Esses says about one out of every three marriages is in danger of breakdown. Added to that is the high rate of divorce among people who try a second marriage.

"We're living in a society now where there's a great deal of stress economically on families," she says.

And even Winnipeg's severe climate can make it harder to keep a marriage going.

"It is very difficult even for a family which is pretty well off financially to cope with the problems that emerge from having to be together so much of the time."

Esses will teach the University of Manitoba's first graduate course in family therapy this year. She will be working with psychology and social work students, as well as psychiatric residents at the university medical school and teaching hospitals.

She says the family-breakdown crisis has grown over the last 15 or 20 years, and studies have shown about one in 10 married persons feels completely happy and fulfilled.

"But I think that our measuring instruments leave a great deal to be desired. Also, we must look into what people's expectations of happiness really are."

There's a mythology about marriage which leads to breakdown and sends thousands of people scrambling to seek help, Esses says.

Today, people seem to carry the illusion marriages don't require work to keep them going, whereas in the past couples were more likely to expend the energy needed to deal with marital problems, she says.

Living together before marriage can be good, but often it carries an attitude of "having one foot in and one foot out."

Esses says, more people are beginning to examine their life situations.

"One third of our undergraduate population of (university) women are over 25. Many women are coming back to school."

She says many people still in university in their late 20s or 30s are looking for healthy, satisfying relationships as well as preparing for careers.

"Often these people are seeking some kind of midground between commitment to a marriage and a purely casual affair."

However, she says, as students they don't yet have much financial or personal autonomy.

These cash bonuses, which were introduced in 1974, increase the effective annual yield on the bonds to 10½% from September 1, 1974 to October 31, 1979.

A FINAL BONUS AT MATURITY

In addition to the November 1, 1979 cash bonus, you will also receive a final cash bonus payment, providing you hold these bonds to maturity. With the final bonus, your bonds will continue to yield 10½% to their maturity date.

HOW TO CLAIM YOUR NOVEMBER 1, 1979 BONUS

Simply take your bond to any bank or other authorized Canada Savings Bond issuing agent. As proof of payment, they'll remove the upper left hand corner and the bond will then be given back to you. Remember, you do not have to redeem your bond or clip any of the interest coupons in order to get this cash bonus payment.

Starting October 9 you can make advance arrangements to claim your special cash bonus. If you act in October, all the paperwork in connection with the payment of the cash bonus will be done for you immediately and the transfer of funds will take place automatically on November 1.

YIELD INCREASED ON LAST FIVE ISSUES

Effective from November 1, 1979 the average annual yield to maturity on issues dated November 1, 1974 to November 1, 1978 has been increased to 10¼%.

1974/75, 1975/76 AND 1976/77 SERIES

Holders of these Series will receive the new, higher return in the form of a cash bonus payable on the maturity date of the bonds. The cash bonus increases the effective annual yield on these bonds to 10¼% from November 1, 1979 to maturity. Here are the bonuses payable per $100 face value:

Series	Maturity Date	Cash Bonus Payable at Maturity
1974/75 (S29)	Nov. 1, 1983	$2.50
1975/76 (S30)	Nov. 1, 1984	$4.75
1976/77 (S31)	Nov. 1, 1985	$8.00

To receive your cash bonus, you have to hold your bond to maturity. You can however continue to cash your coupons or interest cheques each year and still be entitled to the cash bonus.

1977/78 AND 1978/79 SERIES

Effective from November 1, 1979 these Series will now yield 10¼% interest for each remaining year to maturity.

With the increased rate of return, holders of Regular Interest Bonds of these Series will now receive an annual interest payment of $102.50 per $1,000 face value each November 1, beginning in 1980, until the bonds mature.

For Compound Interest Bonds, interest will now accumulate at the new rate of 10¼% a year. This interest is payable when the bonds are redeemed or at maturity. Here's how the value of a $100 Compound Interest Bond will now grow:

	1977/78 Series	1978/79 Series
Nov. 1, 1979	$115.81	$109.50

Captains anchored in ferry management

B.C. Ferry Corp. captains won't regain collective bargaining rights as members of a union and will have to learn to live as members of management.

The 33 skippers are getting that message from the corporation's top manager and from rulings of the Labor Relations Board after the captains released a document saying they are being stifled by red tape and petty bureaucrats who are placing management practices ahead of safety.

The labor board removed the captains from the B.C. Ferry and Marine Workers Union in December, saying they were not considered employees under the provincial labor code and therefore not eligible for union membership.

Members of the B.C. Ferry Officers Committee appealed the decision but the board rejected it in June.

Ron Bone, the board's administrative vice-president, said Wednesday the case has been closed by the board and is not open to public scrutiny.

Charles Gallagher, general manager of the corporation, said the captains wanted to form an officers' association to be recognized for collective bargaining and he rejected the proposal in view of the labor board's decisions.

Instead, the corporation has set up a management committee that meets regularly with the officers to develop proper management practices.

Gallagher identified the head of the captain's committee as Capt. Andy Logan of Beach Grove. Logan declined comment when contacted about the group's complaints.

Gallagher said their complaints are nonsense and their problem is a lack of familiarity with the management process.

"Because of that we have also set up a process of management training for them."

Gallagher said not all of the captains, who earn about $29,000 a year, are a driving force behind the complaints.

"Some are responding to becoming managers and some aren't."

He said that when the officers were taken out of the union the corporation adopted a range of salaries for them based on performance.

"This is what may be causing the problem."

Gallagher said the corporation has appointed area managers at the Swartz Bay and Horseshoe Bay terminals to meet with the skippers and iron out problems.

"They are supposed to work as a team," he said.

The captains committee has complained that once the labor board made its original decision, the ferry corporation tried to dominate the captains and the labor board did not give proper consideration to safety when it split the captains from the union.

Environmentalists complain to Fraser

VANCOUVER (CP) — Nine British Columbia environmental organizations have complained to federal Environment Minister John Fraser that the National Energy Board has refused to move its West Coast oil pipeline hearings to B.C. and the Yukon from Ottawa.

The hearings, scheduled for Oct. 2, will hear rival applications from Trans Mountain Pipe Line Corp. and Foothills Oil Pipeline Ltd. to transport oil from Alaska to the United States mid west.

The NEB has already rejected a request by B.C. environmental organizations that the hearings be moved to Vancouver and Whitehorse and start no earlier than Nov. 15.

Now the groups have written to Fraser complaining that the Ottawa location for the hearings "imposes unnecessary expenses and delays on all parties."

Self-styled 'mayor' sells out

VANCOUVER (CP) — Alex DiCimbriani, who calls himself the mayor of a city within a city, has sold his West End real estate holdings to one individual and two companies for $5 million.

DiCimbriani said Wednesday that Qualico Development Ltd. of Winnipeg was the major purchaser, buying properties in the 1300-block Comox for $4 million.

DiCimbriani said The Baxter Group Ltd. of Vancouver bought another property and an individual, Robert Boyce of Vancouver, purchased another building.

He said the transactions include a stipulation that he remain as manager of the properties.

Winning 1st prize was just the start

BRANDON (CP) — For someone who says she has "never won a thing," Adeline Nychuk of Neepawa makes a gambled dollar go a long way.

Mrs. Nychuk bought three tickets for a raffle sponsored by Brandon's Crocus Obedience and Kennel Club on the weekend.

She won the first prize of $100, the second prize of $75, and before she could collect that money, was declared the winner of $50.

The draws were made by two club members with three more as witnesses.

Mrs. Nychuk says she bought just four of the 1,284 tickets in the draw.

George McMaster, a mathematics professor at Brandon University calculates the odds against the triple win to be 351,542,000 to 1.

MLA charged in drug sweep

WILSON
. . . importing charge

WINNIPEG (UPC) — Bob Wilson, 44, a Manitoba MLA, is one of 11 persons charged in Provincial Judges Court with conspiracy to import marijuana following a year-long police investigation.

Wilson, the Conservative member for Wolseley, was arrested Wednesday morning at his Winnipeg home, but later was released on bail. He has been remanded to Oct. 1.

Wilson, a bailiff, has been a member of the Manitoba legislature since 1975.

During their investigations, police seized an estimated $250,000 worth of the drug in two separate raids — one on May 3 near Winkler, Man., 130 miles southwest of Winnipeg, and the other July 22 near Emo in Northwestern Ontario.

Petro-Can bid eyed by CDC

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Canadian Development Corporation (CDC) might bid for Petro-Canada if the federal government decides to sell the publicly-owned energy company, CDC president H. Anthony Hampson said Wednesday.

The development corporation, which has assets of $2.7 billion, wants to expand its current oil and gas business and would be a logical buyer for Petro-Canada, Hampson said at a news conference.

He said any deal for Petro-Canada would have to be at "arm's length" because the CDC is two-thirds owned by the federal government.

Hampson said he doesn't know if the Conservative government plans to sell off the CDC, as it promised to do with Petro-Canada.

The government will announce Friday the names of at least five Crown companies it hopes to sell besides Petro-Canada, Sinclair Stevens, President of the treasury board, has said.

Equal time for PLO?

OTTAWA (CP) — A Palestinian group is demanding the CBC give equal time to a program replying to a television show critical of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).

Abdullah Abdullah said Wednesday the Palestine section of the Arab League information centre here has formally protested The Russian Connection, a film on the PLO shown on the CBC program The Fifth Estate.

He said a letter has been sent to the CBC urging the network to "correct the bias" in the show by giving equal time to opposing views. The letter has also been sent to the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission which regulates broadcasting.

The television show referred to alleged Soviet training of PLO terrorists.

Abdullah said the Palestinian group feels the publicly-owned broadcasting system has "played into the hands of Israeli propaganda" in screening the "one-sided, so-called documentary."

His invention flushed with success

WELLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — A local inventor says he's sitting on a multi-million dollar toilet inventon that will revolutionize the industry.

Arnold Hennessy says domestic water rates in this era of inflation are rising as fast as everything else, but he has found a way to slash consumption as much as 80 per cent.

Almost half of all the water consumed in Canadian homes is used in toilets and Hennessy said he has developed a toilet which uses less than one gallon a flush compared with the average of about five gallons.

He has a patent on the new system which has been approved by the Canadian Standards Association.

Almost any homeowner can install the system in as little as 20 minutes.

The Hennessey design, which remains a secret, is said to be identical in appearance to ordinary toilets.

It is not chemically treated, has no air compressor or holding tank and does not use a vaccuum system. Beyond saying what it is not; Hennessy is rigid in his refusal to say how the system eliminates water waste.

However, he and his four partners expect to put it into production in November at his plant in this community about 75 kilometres southwest of Kingston.

Hennessy predict that the initial investment of $298,000 will be recovered quickly in what could be a $20-million-a-year industry.

"Our society wastes far too much water and I'm talking about costly-treated water," Hennessy, 52, said in an interview.

He said he expects to market his system for about $175 a unit.

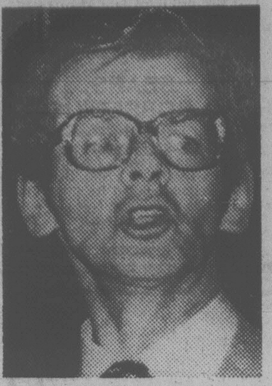
Socreds put halt to PC drift



ROY

OTTAWA (CP) — Fabien Roy won round-two Wednesday in his tug-of-war with Prime Minister Clark for the affections of Social Credit MPs.

Armand Caouette, Social Credit member for the Quebec riding of Abitibi, signed a document re-affirming allegiance to his party and announced that he has turned down offers to join Clark's Progressive Conservatives.

Roy was not so lucky Sunday when Richard Janelle (Lotbiniere) announced he was abandoning Social Credit for the Conservatives.

Clark's Quebec ministers immediately began spreading rumors that some of Janelle's colleagues plus some Liberals were also ready to defect and help the Conservatives turn their minority government into a majority.

All six Social Credit MPs elected May 22 are from Quebec.

Standing in the 282-seat Commons now is Conservatives 136, Liberals 113, New Democrats 26, Social Credit 5 and vacant 2.

Claude Tessier, Liberal MP for the Quebec riding of Megantic-Compton-Stanstead, was quoted in the Montreal newspaper La Presse as saying he was considering joining the Conservatives.

Clark has made it known that he wants Liberal MP James Jerome to continue as Speaker and, should Opposition Leader Pierre Trudeau give his blessing to Jerome's re-appointment, Clark would need only four more MPs in his party to have a majority.

The five-member Social Credit caucus could keep the Conservatives in power but relations between the parties have worsened continually since the election and Roy is threatening to become a parliamentary mischief-maker if Clark does not start acting friendlier.

Senator Martial Asselin, minister of state for the Canadian International Development Agency, suggests that defections and byelections could give the Conservatives a majority within six months.

So far, none of the MPs rumored to be defecting to the Conservatives are high-profile politicians. Janelle, little-known outside his own rural Quebec riding, now is considered in line for a junior cabinet job soon after Parliament meets Oct. 9.

Convicts free hostages

STE. ANNE DES PLAINES, Que. (UPC) — Two convicts released four male hostages unharmed Wednesday in exchange for publicizing grievances against jail conditions, ending a three-day drama at the maximum-security Archambault Institute.

Serge Payeur, 24, and Michel Boudreault, 23, released their hostages — teachers Michel Pare, 35, and John Brockman; staff supervisor Martin Chevarie and guard Serge Geoffroy, 28 — shortly after 6:00 p.m.

The two convicts, who said in their communique, "animals are better treated than we are," were then whisked away to a high-security center at nearby Laval, joining two other hostage takers who surrendered Tuesday.

"The principal goal of the negotiations has been successful. No one was harmed," said Archambault Assistant Director Laval Marchand after the 58-hour incident ended.

Among their grievances, the convicts said medical treatments are often given against the will of patients.

Increase for NATO assured: McKinnon

WASHINGTON (CP) — Defence Minister Allan McKinnon assured U.S. defence authorities Wednesday that Canada is committed to continue increasing its spending to support NATO military forces by a real rate of three per cent annually through 1984.

But following meetings here with Defence Secretary Harold Brown, McKinnon said he hadn't committed Canada to continue that rate of spending increase through 1986, as other NATO allies have done.

He said Brown seemed "very pleased" with the Canadian government's plans for defence spending, but added there is no point in making commitments about spending beyond the current government's term of office. The Progressive Conservatives were elected in May and this was McKinnon's first meeting with Brown.

Their talks were concentrated on NATO. McKinnon said that on that subject and other topics including the North American Air Defence agreement that is coming up for re-negotiation in May he found himself in broad agreement with U.S. defence authorities.

The defence minister later met briefly with Zbigniev Brzezinski, President Carter's national security adviser, but couldn't be reached for comment. He reviewed troops at the Pentagon earlier in the day.

McKinnon said he and Brown talked about Canadian plans for purchasing advanced F-16 or F-18 fighter planes for Canadian Forces, and the Canadian minister repeated that a final decision on one aircraft will be made by year-end.

"If we're lucky, we could sign a contract by the end of this year or early next year," McKinnon said. The idea of buying used F-14 aircraft from the Iranian armed forces is "pretty well gone from my mind" because of the difficulty of bargaining with that unstable country.

The Canadian plans are to buy about 130 new aircraft at a total cost in current dollar terms of about $2.95 billion.

Sexual, not political, deviations preferred

OTTAWA (CP) — Tolerance of homosexuality is more widespread in this country than is tolerance of different political opinion, says a survey by the Canadian Human Rights Commission released Wednesday.

The survey said agreement with political discrimination and disagreement with discrimination against homosexuals increases with rising family income and better education.

In the survey, 2,000 adults were interviewed in 116 communities. All spoke English or French. Seven per cent said they were victims of discrimination at least once in the last year.

The most frequently mentioned reason for discrimination was disadvantaged social situation — 17 per cent of all reasons were related to having a low income, receiving welfare or unemployment insurance benefits, living in public housing, lacking education or job experience or some other social status.

Among other grounds for discrimination, 13 per cent were age, 12 per cent female sex, nine per cent official language, six per cent handicap, five per cent race or color, four per cent ethnic origin and less than one per cent homosexuality.

The survey said persons with the highest income and the most education are the most knowledgable about their rights, about discriminatory practices and about human rights agencies.

To test tolerance, interviewers asked about three possible situations dealing with political opinion, homosexuality and handicap.

Asked if a woman should be refused a government job because she belongs to an extremist opposition party, 47 per cent agreed, 44 per cent disagreed and nine per cent were indiffent or had no opinion.

Asked if a self-acknowledged homosexual with superior qualifications should be hired into the RCMP security service, 68 per cent agreed, 25 per cent disagreed and seven per cent were indifferent or had no opinion.

Asked if property taxes should be raised by $36 to build street ramps for wheelchairs at intersections, 80 per cent agreed, 17 per cent disagreed and three per cent were indifferent or had no opinion.

Star strike decision 'fatal'

MONTREAL (CP) — FP Publications has conceded that the Montreal Star — which ceased publication Tuesday — made a fatal mistake when it decided to weather an eight-month strike last winter rather than meet the demands of its pressmen.

David Perks, FP's vice-president for finance, said in an interview Wednesday that "if we had settled at the beginning, it would have been The Gazette that would have folded yesterday."

While The Star decided to hold out against the pressmen's demands, its rival Gazette gambled by giving its production employees a new contract last December which made them among the highest-paid in the industry.

The Star, which criticized The Gazette for the settlement, eventually ended the strike in February by giving its workers essentially the same terms as had been won at The Gazette.

"This was a decision taken solely by William Goodson," said Perks who also is company treasurer and secretary.

Goodson resigned as Star publisher in July after what he described at the time as "a breakdown in personal relations between the corporate head office and me."

Asked whether FP was involved in The Star's decision, Perks said: "Goodson informed us."

Asked whether it was a mistake to leave the decision at that level, Perks said that "you should ask (FP President) George Currie that question. Mr. Goodson worked for Mr. Currie."

Perks also described the negotiations between FP and Southam Inc. that led to an agreement between the two rival newspaper groups by which a jointly-owned firm could publish both The Gazette and The Star's successor in the Star building.

The agreement hinges on one controversial clause by which the assets of The Star — including its high-capacity presses which The Gazette needs — must be free of any claims by the 969 former Star employees.

On the Toronto Stock exchange Wednesday, shares of Southam Inc. rose $1.75 a share to $28 as the market responded to news of the demise of The Star.

While details of the agreement — which Perks said would not be made public although he assured that all its general terms were known — were emerging Wednesday the mood was glum in the front lobby of the Star building.

Former employees complained as they were forced to file through a metal detector on their way into the building to pick up their personal belongings.

Former Star columnist Nick Auf der Maur said he found the security precautions ludicrous.

"Do they think it's Fort Knox or something? Do they figure somebody's going to hijack the newspaper?"

It was also announced that officials of the Sterling newspaper group are "prepared to look at the newsaper situation in Montreal" following the folding of the Montreal Star, a Sterling spokesman said Wednesday.

White said his company was studying options to determine whether it will become involved in a bid to revive the newspaper.

However, he was not optimistic that the paper could come back.

Clark names 3 to Senate

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Clark appointed three Progressive Conservative senators today — two men from Quebec and a woman from Alberta.

The Quebecers are Guy Charbonneau, a Montreal businessman who has been a prominent Tory fund-raiser, and Arthur Tremblay, a former deputy minister of intergovernmental affairs in Quebec.

The Alberta appointment went to Martha Bielish, a teacher who has been active for several years in women's rights groups and education councils.

Clark indicated earlier this week that any new Quebec senators would not be appointed to the cabinet as well. New ministers would come from the Commons.

Charbonneau and Tremblay fill the only two vacant seats from the province but five vacancies from other provinces remain.

Standing in the Senate: Conservative 24, Liberal 71, independent 2, Independent Liberal 1, Social Credit 1 and vacant five..

Opening lead — queen of diamonds.

Let's assume you're in seven hearts and West leads a diamond. When dummy appears, your first reaction might be that the outcome depends entirely on finding the missing spades divided 3-3. Apparently, the thing to do is draw trumps, play the A-K-Q of spades, and hope to discard your club loser on dummy's fourth spade.

But you know from past experience that the spades are unlikely to be 3-3. There's only a 36 per cent chance of finding them evenly divided. So you start looking for other ways to play the hand that will supplement your overall chances.

You can increase your chances considerably by playing for a squeeze. Furthermore, you can do this without relinquishing your chance of a 3-3 spade split. But, to achieve the squeeze, you must time your plays somewhat carefully. Here is what you do:

Trump the diamond lead, play a heart to the queen, trump another diamond, play a heart to the king, and trump still another diamond. The purpose of the two extra diamond ruffs is to try to saddle one player — in this case West — with the burden of guarding dummy's last diamond.

You then play another trump and cash the A-K-Q of spades, producing this position:

North

◇9
♣K 4

West
◇J
♣Q 8 6

East
♠J
♣J 10 7

South
♡10
♣A 9 5

Now you play your last trump. West must keep his diamond, so he discards a club. When you then discard dummy's diamond, East, who must keep the jack of spades, also discards a club. You then win the last three tricks with the K-A-9 of clubs. That's all there is to it!

Mopped 10 years to hire murderer

NEW YORK (Reuter) — For 10 years, Mrs. Hanife Gjonbalaj, an Albanian immigrant from Yugoslavia, mopped floors in New York's biggest building, the World Trade Centre, saving every cent of her $150-a-week salary she could.

Prosecutors say she was trying tp pay a man to murder another man who killed her husband in a fight a decade ago.

A spokesman for Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola said that by last June Gjonbalaj, 37, had saved $10,000 dollars and put the word out that she and her brother Imer Balidemaj, 32, needed a killer.

They found him, but what they did not know was that he was a police undercover agent, acting on another case and posing as a Mafia-type hitman, he said.

"Once they started negotiating with him, they wanted him to kill four other people for the full $10,000," the spokesman said.

The woman, a 37-year-old mother of four, and her 32-year-old brother were arrested Tuesday after the undercover agent gave her identification belonging to the man who had killed her husband.

She looked very happy and paid him the money, the agent said.

Pasko Vaula, 43, was charged with manslaughter and served four years in prison for the death of Mrs. Gjonbalaj's husband, Din, in 1969.

The woman felt the sentence was not harsh enough. She wanted him, his two brothers and two other men killed.

Small cars perilous injury report shows

WASHINGTON (AP) — More people in the United States say they were injured in Toyota Corollas and Celicas, Honda Civics, Datson B-210s and Ford Mustang IIs than in any other 1978-model cars, an insurance industry report said Wednesday.

The fewest injuries were reported by occupants of five General Motors' four-door models — the Oldsmobile Delta 88, the Buick LeSabre, and the Chevrolet Caprice, Impala and Nova, the Washington-based Insurance Institute for Highway Safety said.

"These results . . . show that there obviously are huge differences in the degree of crash protection manufacturers build into different automobiles," said William Haddon, president of the institute, which is funded by insurance companies.

"The fact that some cars have had such comparatively high claims frequencies is even more tragic when you consider that technology to far better protect people in crashes has been readily available for years," he said.

The auto-makers named in the report are not immediately available for reaction.

Robert McElwaine, president of the American Imported Automobile Dealers Association, said he has yet to review the institute's findings. He added: "It's an undeniable fact that in a collision between a large car and a small car, the small car is in greater jeopardy purely because of the law of physics."

Haddon, however, said the key finding involves the disparity among cars in individual categories.

In the two-door subcompact field, for example, the Chevrolet Chevette had the fewest claims against it — 104 per 1,000 insured vehicle years. This compared with the Civic's 144 injury claims.

Mafia witness seeking $4.5M

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $4.5-million suit was filed against the U.S. justice department Wednesday by a former Mafia gang member turned government witness.

Gerald (Chicken) Festa, 50, a former member of the Gambino Mafia family based in New York, said the government has not held up its end of a bargain to give him a new home, a new identity and a new life.

Instead, he said, he and his family are living on welfare in a Maryland suburb of Washington with no job, no new home and no protection against the Mafia.

He contended there is a $250,000 contract on his life for the years he spent as a witness testifying against 60 former associates in organized crime.

Festa, who then lived in Newark, N.J., said he joined the witness program in 1974 after being arrested on a murder charge which was later dropped, a murder for which he said he was not responsible.

"The government has used me up, thrown me away and left me with nothing," Festa was quoted as saying in a newspaper interview

Tolstoy's daughter dies at 85

VALLEY COTTAGE, N.Y. (UPI) — Alexandra Tolstoy, the daughter of Russian writer-philosopher Count Leo Tolstoy who fled her homeland when the Stalin regime seized the family estate, died Wednesday. She was 95.

A family spokesman said Miss Tolstoy died at the nursing home on the grounds of the Tolstoy Foundation Center, where she had been in poor health since 1976.

Miss Tolstoy helped her father escape from the estate in 1910, but he made it only a short distance before dying of fever.

Vigilantes hunt Kamloops rustlers

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Cattle rustling in the Kamloops region has probably increased by about 40 per cent this year, says an RCMP spokesman.

And the problem will probably get worse with the start of the hunting season, says Henry Blazowski, secretary-manager of the British Columbia Cattlemen's Association.

To counteract the problem, RCMP will conduct spot checks on back roads to try to catch hunters who try to bring home a winter's supply of beef by butchering cows found in isolated pastures.

"If people are aware we're out there, it might deter people who may be thinking they can get free beef," said Sgt. Don Roberts of the RCMP's livestock investigation section.

"We're talking about a great deal of money every time one animal is taken," he said. "When you look at it, he (a rustler) is stealing $800 from a guy."

RCMP checks will be supported by volunteer range patrols from the cattlemen's association and other area groups.

The association offers a $1,000 reward for information leading to the conviction of rustlers.

"We have been paying it fairly often," said Blazowski.

New twist to ripoff in Ohio

PAINESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Ripping off magazines from the neighborhood convenience store is nothing new, but Lake County authorities are looking for a man who has added a new twist to the crime.

Police said he walked into a convenience food store in Painesville Township on Monday night, wearing nothing but a pair of men's briefs over his head.

The man allegedly pinched a female clerk, picked up three mens' magazines and walked out without saying a word, or paying, police reported.

Highlands freeze on way out

The seven-year-old 45-acre subdivision freeze in the Highlands is being lifted.

In a turn-around Wednesday the Capital Regional District board voted first reading to a bylaw which will reinstate the original 10-acre minimum for most of the Highlands, with special five-acre minimums in the Fork Lake and East Highlands districts.

Earlier that day, the planning and zoning committee had voted to keep the 45-acre freeze in place until a plan for the entire Highlands was completed.

It was a close vote. Directors Howard Drummond, Al Beasley and Mike Clement voted for the retention while directors Jim Campbell, Charles Perkins and Mac Tipton were against it. Chairman Ed Lubick cast the deciding vote.

At the committee meeting Campbell said the 45-acre freeze was discriminatory.

"I feel we've been found at fault and should go back and set the thing right," he argued.

One Highlands property owner has started court action to have the 45-acre freeze lifted, claiming discrimination. A secret meeting was held two weeks ago to produce a bylaw which would satisfy all the residents.

The decision to revert to the 10-acre zoning came Tuesday after a secret meeting of the board.

Lubick voted against the move, saying it would have an adverse effect on the planning of the Highlands community.

"It is a great disservice to the people of the Highlands and a great disservice to the people of the future," he said.

Public hearings on Highlands rezoning, set for Oct. 3, were cancelled today because of the switch to 10-acre minimums. They will be rescheduled.

Fraser's beefs valid in places: Couvelier

Highways Minister Alex Fraser's complaints about the Prospect Lake and McKenzie Avenue extension issues are valid but he's off-base saying the Royal Oak industrial park controversey is taking too much of his time, Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier said Wednesday.

"Any extra workload (on Royal Oak) is due 100 per cent to the highways ministry's own failings," Couvelier said.

Fraser said Wednesday the three projects have taken as much of his time as all the other municipalities in B.C. put together.

Fraser blamed the controversy on Saanich politicians who want to generate headlines because of upcoming municipal elections.

The minister's criticism came after Saanich council members accused the ministry of allowing subdivision development along Prospect Lake without an easement for public access.

Fraser said he doesn't believe claims the ministry is responsible for access to the lake being sealed off by subdivisions.

Couvelier agreed, saying the mistake was a result of a communication breakdown between municipal staff and council.

"Our own staff were not made aware of council's wishes," Couvelier said.

He said Fraser's criticism of the McKenzie Avenue extension controversy is also valid.

Fraser came down hard on Ald. Fred Severson for telling residents he would meet them.

But Severson said Wednesday he was only trying to help in his capacity as chairman of the public works committee.

He said a ministry official gave him the impression Fraser would see residents.

Council wants the extension to go through just as much as the highways ministry, Severson said.

"I'm on his side, I know he's got a tough job."

Severson denied his role in the McKenzie controversy is motivated by a desire to get publicity for the November elections.

"I don't stoop to that kind of politics."

Angry area residents asked him to get involved, he said.

"If the ministry is concerned because I'm concerned, I can't help that," he said.

Refugee health checks too hasty: critic

Medical experts cannot detect all illnesses brought in by refugees, a spokesman for a group opposed to emergency-type immigration.

Sidney Carroll was replying to a statement Wednesday by regional medical officer of health Dr. Allan Arneil that immigrants get a thorough health check and the risk to Victoria is minimal.

"That may be true of regular immigrants," Carroll said.

"Unfortunately, refugees must be processed so quickly there is no way all their diseases can be detected."

She said the medical history of regular immigrants is studied for almost six months but refugees can get into Canada almost overnight with only a few quick tests.

"I know about immigration because it took me between five and six months to get clearance to move into the U.S."

Carroll is circulating a petition calling upon Canada to end the practice of accepting large numbers of refugees.

She has about a dozen members in a citizens group circulating the petition.

"We are not suffering from xenophobia (fear of strangers)," she said. "Nor are we Archie Bunker types. We are just concerned about the health and security of our country.

"At the rate we're going we could end up with wall-to-wall people."

Sweeter deal for transit

An agreement between the provincial government and the Greater Vancouver Regional District on financing public transit will mean a better deal for the Capital Regional District, Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier said today.

Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm announced Wednesday that the agreement had been reached.

"If it (the agreement with the GVRD) is a bit sweeter, our contract will have to reflect that sweetness," Couvelier said.

Couvelier and Victoria Ald. Bill Tindall, who is vice-chairman, were appointed to the Urban Transit Authority by the provincial government.

Tindall said Greater Vancouver had been opposed to the financing formula previously agreed to by the CRD.

In the five-year contract, the provincial government would pay 75 per cent of the deficit in the first two years, the CRD, 25 per cent. In the third year the ratio would be 70-30, in the fourth, 65-35 and in the fifth, 60-40.

Tindall said Greater Vancouver wanted a 70-30 split for five years and greater representation on the UTA.

He said the CRD has also agreed to the provincial government's proposal that the 65 per cent deficit be financed by a three cents per gallon levy on gas in the first stage, an increase in B.C. Hydro bills in the second phase and by property tax increases in the final stage.

He said Greater Vancouver did not want property taxes increased for public tranist financing.

"We've agreed on something acceptable and it's now a matter of taking it to our respective bodies," Vander Zalm said in an interview.

He said the formula involves jurisidiction, funding and means of funding.

"I'll be taking it to cabinet and they'll be taking it forth to the regional districts," Vander Zalm said.

"Hopefully it will all be concluded within the next week or two. Following that I expect there'll be the signing of agreements and we'll get on with transit in Greater Vancouver and Victoria."

He refused to disclose any details.

The regional districts were to have taken over the transit services from B.C. Hydro through the UTA and its operating company, the Metro Transit Operating Company, April 1.

Hydro says the annual losses on transit, paid by its other operations, is around $60 million a year.

The GVRD balked at being saddled with more costs than it now has to run a transit system, effectively preventing the government from implementing its plan.

Today's party-goer no crooner: CRD

The days of beach parties with people sitting around singing Moonlight Bay while somebody strummed a mandolin are gone, Sooke director Charles Perkins told the Capital Regional Board on Wednesday.

He was commenting on a petition from residents in the Glen Lake area who want an anti-noise bylaw. The residents of an apartment block across from the King John Inn complained of all-night parties at the Glendale Apartment and yelling and tire-squealing by customers of the King John beer parlor.

They said the RCMP, when contacted, had asked for names and addresses of the offenders. This was not possible because the apartment residents moved in and out.

The residents had then asked Esquimalt-Port Renfrew MLA Frank Mitchell for help. He handed over the problem to the regional district.

Perkins, noting there was no noise problem in the days of Moonlight Bay, doubted if an anti-noise bylaw could be enforced.

The petition was received and filed.

Being difficult pays for repairs

Being difficult to deal with paid off Wednesday for Gerald Chaster, assistant parks superintendent for Saanich.

Chaster, who lives adjacent to the Gorge where Saanich wants to place a sewage syphon, had refused council an easement across his property. He said his seawall had been damaged by earlier sewer construction and he wanted it repaired before granting an easement.

Saanich council asked the Capital Regional District to start expropriation proceedings to allow early access to the property.

Executive director Dennis Young said the regional district is the only body allowed to take such action for sewer construction, adding that when the Gorge syphon was first built in 1970 the former owners of Chaster's property had made a private agreement with contractors to allow an easement.

A hole in the seawall was replaced with riprap (rock facing) and Young said he understood a cash settlement for damage had been made.

Chaster told the board he estimated costs of repairs to be about $6,000 and Mayor Mel Couvelier said that sum would be satisfactory to Saanich.

The board decided to table the request for expropriation and leave Saanich to negotiate with Chaster.

Trucker's garage approved

Dale Arden will soon be able to have a logging truck garage and maintenance shop next to Muir Creek west of Sooke if the provincial government agrees.

The Capital Regional District board voted unanimously Wednesday to give second and third readings to a controversial rezoning bylaw to allow Arden to operate in the rural area.

Sooke director Charles Perkins said a development permit will be issued, setting out screening and other control conditions.

Perkins said there must be a place for industrial activity in a community that is primarily dependent on logging and lumber.

GARDENING

Jack Beastall

Remember the cricket?

How many home gardeners remember the fable of the ant and the cricket?

The ant spent the beautiful days of fall laying in stores for the winter while the cricket enjoyed the warmth and sunshine, merrily chirping all day.

Then came the day when warmth and sunshine were gone. The skies darkened, the rain became continuous, and the wind blew cold from the north.

The ant snuggled down in her cosy well-stocked home without a worry or a care, but the cricket had no home. She ran from door to door telling her plight, but none took pity nor offered her warmth or food.

They suggested that since she had danced and sang through the glorious days of fall, she should continue dancing and singing through the winter to keep warm and maintain her spirits.

Every time I hear the crickets chirp I think how much we home gardeners are like them. We know the rain and winds are coming but we prefer to relax and enjoy the balmy days of fall. We know that time is running out but we still put off until tomorrow the planting and harvesting we should be doing now.

Unless we become as industrious as the ant we shall never catch up on the work that should have been done this month, nor keep up to date with our schedule for October.

Fall, which started last Sunday at 8:17 a.m. daylight time, is the best planting time in this part of the country. Flowering perennials should have been divided and in the soil making good roots by now.

The biennials, wallflowers and forget-me-nots and so forth, should follow before the end of this month, then the rest of the spring flowering bulbs, tulips first, bulbous iris last.

Evergreen shrubs and conifers will be planted in October, those in containers going into the garden right away, those dug from nurseries as soon as available.

Deciduous shrubs and trees, roses, and other plants not moved until their leaves have fallen, will come at the end of the fall planting season.

The holes for these plants are dug now, the subsoil broken, coarse compost incorporated, and screened compost mixed with the top soil ready for planting.

The foot-square seed bed is prepared for the onion seed which is sown at the end of October, and the trench is prepared for the sweet peas seeds that are sown around the same time.

Those tiny weeds which have appeared everywhere over the past ten days are removed with a push hoe, the larger perennial weeds lifted root and all. If we ignore them now there will be a mass of large weeds to cope with in spring.

Corms and roots for storage are lifted and dried while the weather is warm and dry. If left until the soil becomes wet they are more prone to storage rots. Places are prepared for winter vegetable storage.

While there are hundreds of books and pamphlets giving instructions on the use of poisonous sprays, dusts, and baits, for the control of plant pests and diseases, only the older gardening books stress the importance of cleanliness in the garden as a preventive measure.

Every bit of rubbish left lying around the garden over winter provides a safe and snug hideaway for insects, good and bad. Bricks, stones, plant refuse, dead hollow stems on plants, will harbor pests not welcomed next season, and diseased tissue will spread spores to other plants.

No longer can we afford to say "tomorrow", for any day now may be the last chance we shall have to work in a dry soil and the glorious days the ant used to make things snug for the winter.

RJH board to meet in secret

How to cope with doctors' mutiny

By JANE COVERNTON

Royal Jubilee Hospital board members will meet in secret session before tonight's first-ever public meeting.

The public meeting is slated to discuss an RJH doctors' motion of non-confidence in board chairman Terry Prentice.

But two hours before the meeting starts, board members will meet privately over dinner.

The purpose of the closed-door session: How to handle the public meeting and, particularly, the motion of non-confidence in Prentice.

The secret session was confirmed by three board members.

Tonight's board meeting starts at 7.30 p.m. in Memorial Pavilion.

The non-confidence motion was endorsed unanimously by 120 RJH doctors, including RJH board member and chief of medical staff, Dr. Elinor Powell.

Prentice is currently on holidays in England.

The dinner meeting was arranged by acting board chairman Eric Simmons.

Former Conservative leader Dr. Scott Wallace, one of the doctlrs who voted non-confidence in Prentice, today called the private meeting "an insult."

"I'm just wondering how long it will take them to learn that they're accountable to the public," he said.

Board members Joe Bourque and Peter Bunn also have misgivings about the private meeting but plan to attend.

"I'll go to see what kinds of things are discussed," said Bourque, who is Saanich council's appointee.

"I thought we'd got away from such things. It's just not the way to go about things. In the U.S., such meetings would be illegal. I have grave misgivings but I feel I have to go to see what's going on," said Oak Bay appointee Bunn.

"Simmons told me it was to discuss how to handle the first meeting in public. I would have thought a little brushing up on the rules of order would be enough."

Bunn said he is at odds with most of the board members because of the way

Runway hitch-hike a no-no

PENTICTON (CP) — Hitch-hiking on an airport runway can mean a one-way trip to jail.

Anthony Adam Burgess, 23, of Summerville, Que., was bound over in custody in provincial court Wednesday on a charge of causing a disturbance by impeding public traffic.

He was to appear again Friday when Crown prosecutor Larry Halbauer said the Criminal Code charge would likely be dropped in favor of a more appropriate count under the Aeronautics Act.

Burgess was charged Tuesday when a man ran into the path of a private plane preparing for takeoff at the local airport and flagged it down.

The pilot, fearing some emergency, brought his craft to a screeching halt and was asked for a lift to Calgary.

Computer pact reached in all-night bargaining

A tentative agreement was reached this morning in the B.C. Systems Corp. contract dispute signalling a possible quick end to the illegal strike by 360 employees.

An all-night bargaining session in Vancouver involving mediator R. J. Phillips and negotiators for the corporation and the B.C. Government Employees Union produced the agreement about 6 a.m.

The computer operators, programmers and office workers in Vancouver and Victoria were voting on the settlement proposals today.

Pickets remained up at five locations here and two in Vancouver pending the results of the vote.

No details of the tentative agreement were released before press time.

The employees went on strike early Wednesday morning because of an impasse over two main issues — job security and wages.

The union said the systems corporation wanted to remove two-year, no-layoff clauses from the contract and refused to give a wage increase comparable to that accepted recently by 40,000 other BCGEU members.

The employees' strike is contrary to the B.C. Labor Code which states that no strike action is allowed while a mediator is still involved.

On a second troubled labor front, meanwhile, the British Columbia Ferry Corp. has refused a request by the 2,700-member B.C. Ferry and Marine Workers Union for further negotiations, a union spokesman said.

Rotating strikes by ferry workers could begin Thanksgiving weekend following the union executive's rejection of an industrial inquiry commissioner's report.

Union president Shirley Mathieson refused to say whether the union would begin strike action on the holiday weekend, adding that an Oct. 4 ratification vote was not intentionally set up to coincide with Thanksgiving.

She said the union bargaining committee was holding membership meetings from today until Monday night. Because the union constitution states there must be 48 hours between the last meeting and a vote, balloting will not take place until next Thursday, the day before the long weekend.

Mathieson said the union plans to engage in rotating strikes rather than a full walkout if the contract is rejected.

She said the union executive cannot accept the report of commissioner Clive McKee because of a recommendation that the contract expiry date be extended an additional three months with only two per cent more in wages during that period.

McKee's non-binding report suggested a 27-month agreement retroactive to Aug. 1 with an eight-per-cent pay increase in each of the first two years.

Moonies hoarding arms?

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Unification Church of Rev. Sun Myung Moon is stockpiling weapons and has become increasingly militant, says a former church member from the United States.

Erica Heftmann told a group of students at the University of Manitoba that she is afraid legal action against the church could provoke an incident like the mass suicide of residents at Jonestown, Guyana, "but not suicide."

"If Moon said shoot, hundreds of centres around North America would conceivably be immediately mobilized into shooting," she said.

Ms. Heftmann said she is happy her parents had her kidnapped and "deprogrammed."

Otherwise, she says she would still be a Moonie, and "as good as dead."

An official of the Unification Church in Toronto, who refused to be identified, said the claim that the church is stockpiling weapons is "absolutely outrageous and ridiculous.

"I'd say two words to her — prove it."

He also said it is ludicrous to compare the church with Rev. Jim Jones' sect. The Unification Church, which started in Korea, has Canadian bases in Montreal, Ottawa, and Toronto with about 1,000 members.

Ms. Heftmann joined the church when she was living in Los Angeles.

She said she went for what she thought would be a weekend retreat that turned into a year-long association with the movement.

In August, 1976, she was kidnapped on the instructions of her parents and two former church members began to perform what is known as a "deprogramming."

Half-wolf 'pet' chews up boy

KELOWNA (CP) — Teddy Merillat was in hospital with a broken jaw and so many stitches in his head that the doctors lost count after the seven-year-old was attacked by a dog while playing in the backyard of his city home.

RCMP said Wednesday that criminal charges haven't been laid against the owners of the dog, who destroyed the animal after the incident Monday night.

Thomas Merillat, the boy's father, now faces medical bills and the realization that the present law contains nothing about a person keeping a dog which nearly killed a person, provided he does away with it after an incident of this nature.

"The side of his face was hanging right down," Merrillat said. "We rushed the boy to hospital."

The dog was on about a 15-foot leash attached to a pen, which was within six inches of the property line in the yard where the children were playing.

The dog was a three-year-old German Shepherd-wolf cross the owners got four months ago from a man who used it as a watchdog. They said there hadn't had any previous incidents.

Mortgage aid to bare $300M ducked tax?

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — The federal government's mortgage interest deductibility plan could net $300 million in taxes that now are going undeclared, says Blair Jackson, vice-president of the Canadian Real Estate Association.

Many holders of second mortgages are not declaring the income from them, Jackson told a meeting of the Brampton and District Real Estate Board on Wednesday.

He said there are about 200,000 second mortgages being held in Canada, and that these mortgages average about $5,000.

At an average tax rate of 30 per cent, the federal government is being cheated of almost $300 million, Jackson said.

But once the mortgage interest deductibility plan is made law it will be easier for the government to stop this type of tax evasion by cross-indexing the claim for deduction made by the homeowners with the records of the mortgage holder.

The federal government will require documentation of the mortgage details before paying the tax credit, Jackson said.

Second mortgages are often held by the agent or broker who sells a property to the borrower.

Mooing distance fine by neighbors

By PAUL MINVIELLE

There are almost enough supporters now to form a Buddies of Buttercup Club.

A random survey (incomplete but well-intentioned) of homes on Runnymede and Mount Joy avenues, all within mooing distance of 2021 Runnymede, indicated that neighbors of Carel and Bruce Wilkin don't object to having a Jersey cow nearby.

Buttercup hit the news Wednesday and her presence came as a distinct surprise to many Oak Bay residents. The Wilkins' dozen chickens and uncounted bees have taken a back stall to the beautiful bovine.

Mrs. Jack Matvenko, who lives right across the street from the Wilkin mansion, said:

"I haven't seen her but I have heard her. I thought it was my imagination at first. I told my husband and he made some nasty comments about me. But then he heard it, too!"

Mrs. Matvenko admits she and her husband weren't too thrilled when they heard about their new Jersey neighbor. (That's new Jersey — not New Jersey!)

"But I suppose if they're keeping things up, it's fine.

"We're more unhappy with the construction that's going on," she said. "We've been here close to 10 years, but we're looking forward to moving out. It used to be quite nice and quite handy here. The old neighborhood's going to the cows."

Ouch.

One neighbor refused to comment unless guaranteed anonymity.

"Somebody's giving you a bum steer," he said. "They don't have 1½ acres. They took off two lots, and they're suing Oak Bay to get the third lot subdivided, the one they were refused."

What about the cow?

"I think it's kind of neat. It's probably a helluva lot better kept than a lot of other animals around here."

"I just object to somebody giving you a lot of bull about how much property there is there," he said.

Very punny.

"I think she's a pretty nice little cow," said Mrs. Joseph Moreau, who's just down the street at 2028 Runnymede.

She said Buttercup's gentle lowing reminded her of her childhood days in Tisdale, Sask.

"I must say, those people (the Wilkins) have a lot of courage. I wouldn't want to care for a cow under those conditions."

She said Buttercup's occasional midnight serenade has awakened hers.

"I could hear her plaintive mooing."

Drain of MDs costs $120M

CALGARY (CP) — The exodus of some 800 doctors to the United States this year will mean a loss of about $120 million to Canada, Laurence Wilson, president of the Canadian Medical Association, said Wednesday.

This drain of talent is a "substantial hemorrhage" in the medical profession, he told reporters after a speech to the Alberta Medical Association.

Medical schools produce about 1,800 graduates a year, he said, and it costs $150,000 to train each one.

The cost cannot be measured in dollars alone. Many of the departing doctors are bright, young graduates who want to do research, but find there is not enough money in Canada.

He told the doctors the Canadian medical atmosphere is becoming "increasingly inflammable" and laid much of the blame on provincial governments for mismanaging federal health care funds.

Grants from Ottawa, which make up a significant part of health care financing have risen 10 to 13 per cent annually in recent years, but physicians' fees negotiated with provincial governments have risen only six per cent in many cases and some hospital budgets are up 4.5 per cent, Dr. Wilson said.

B.C. Medical Association spokesman Jim Gilmore said the latest information shows 107 doctors left B.C. for the U.S. in the 2½ years to May 1979.

But some 800 doctors were added to the membership of BCMA during the same period for a net gain of almost 700 doctors.

There are 4,500 doctors in B.C. and the University of B.C. graduates 80 new doctors a year, a figure scheduled to double in two years.

New York

The stock market eased slightly today as strength among oils and metal stocks was offset by worries about further increases in the price of gold and a decline in the U.S. dollar.

The price of gold shot above the $395 an ounce level in Europe for the first time and the U.S. dollar fell sharply in foreign exchange trading.

Analysts said traders were worried about rumors that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries would decide in its meeting in Vienna to demand part-payment for its oil in British pounds instead of dollars—an historic change because world oil supplies are traditionally traded in dollars.

London

The London stock market rose moderately near the close of active trading today.

The Financial Times index was up 2.9 to 472.8.

Golds, oils and industrials firmed.

Canadian shares eased.

'Our Gracie' to millions of fans

From grimy Lancashire mill town to Buckingham Palace and Capri

Times News Services

CAPRI — Singer and actress Gracie Fields, the Lancashire mill lass who sang her way into the hearts of millions, died today at her villa on this scenic Mediterranean island. She was 81.

Miss Fields had spent six weeks in hospital this summer suffering from bronchial pneumonia and seemed to have recovered, her manager and agent, Lillian Aza, said in London.

But she collapsed during breakfast and efforts by her husband, Boris Alperovici, to revive her with oxygen failed, Aza said.

Only seven months ago, the Queen Mother made the much-loved singer-actress a Dame Commander of the Order of the British Empire in a pomp-filled ceremony in the ballroom of Buckingham Palace.

But although she was a Dame, she will be remembered in Britain as she had been known for generations, as "Our Gracie."

Grace Stansfield was born in a room above a fish-and-chip shop in the grimy Lancashire mill town of Rochdale on Jan. 9, 1898. Her father was a mechanic and her mother a seamstress.

She worked for several years in the mines but by the 1930s was known as the "richest working woman in the world," earning about $500,000 a year from her films, shows and records.

But fame and fortune didn't turn her head; she retained her simple tastes and a reputation for generosity.

She became a star when she appeared with her first husband, comedian Archie Pitt, in Mr. Tower of London at the London Alhambra.

Some people had predicted her broad Lancashire accent would be her ruin on the stage but she turned it into an asset that was to earn her millions of pounds. She was credited with teaching the world to "speak Lancasheer."

Her decades in show business included 10 royal command performances and international fame with tours of the United States, Europe and South Africa.

Her first big hit film, Sally in our Alley, one of the first talkies, made more money than any other British picture of its vintage and gave her the tune that became her theme song.

In 1936, the woman whose voice was once described by a critic as "a cross between a yodelling song and a Bach cantata" was voted the most popular British screen star.

Her hit songs, such as Sally and Walter, Walter, Lead Me To The Altar, brought her huge record sales. She was believed to have sold more records in Britain in the mid-1920s than any other artist.

She was divorced from Pitt in 1940 and two months later married Monty Banks, otherwise known as Mario Bianchi, an Italian film director. The two of them flew thousands of miles during the Second World War to entertain Allied troops and raised more than $2 million for charities.

After her second husband died in 1950, she married Boris Alperovici on Capri, the island she loved and made her home. She became an Italian citizen in 1959. She had no children.

When she was 80, she crowned her career with a royal variety performance before the Queen Mother in Rochdale at the Gracie Fields Theatre, named in her honor.

Fields used to recall she lived her most beautiful moment as an actress one day in the Pacific.

"I was in Bougainville, in the Pacific, and I was singing for the troops. There was a storm outside and my voice was almost drowned out by the rain and the thunders.

"All of a sudden I noticed the chaplain on the stage asking me to stop singing. I stopped and everyone in the place became attentive.

"The chaplain announced that the war was over.

"I started singing the Pater Noster, and the soldiers sang with me in a chorus.

"I distinctly recall that the soldiers' voices swelled above the noise of the storm."

Star strike decision 'fatal'

MONTREAL (CP) — FP Publications has conceded that the Montreal Star — which ceased publication Tuesday — made a fatal mistake when it decided to weather an eight-month strike last winter rather than meet the demands of its pressmen.

David Perks, FP's vice-president for finance, said in an interview Wednesday that "if we had settled at the beginning, it would have been The Gazette that would have folded yesterday."

While The Star decided to hold out against the pressmen's demands, its rival Gazette gambled by giving its production employees a new contract last December which made them among the highest-paid in the industry.

The Star, which criticized The Gazette for the settlement, eventually ended the strike in February by giving its workers essentially the same terms as had been won at The Gazette.

"This was a decision taken solely by William Goodson," said Perks who also is company treasurer and secretary.

Goodson resigned as Star publisher in July after what he described at the time as "a breakdown in personal relations between the corporate head office and me."

Asked whether FP was involved in The Star's decision, Perks said: "Goodson informed us."

Asked whether it was a mistake to leave the decision at that level, Perks said that "you should ask (FP President) George Currie that question. Mr. Goodson worked for Mr. Currie."

Perks also described the negotiations between FP and Southam Inc. that led to an agreement between the two rival newspaper groups by which a jointly-owned firm could publish both The Gazette and The Star's successor in the Star building.

The agreement hinges on one controversial clause by which the assets of The Star — including its high-capacity presses which The Gazette needs — must be free of any claims by the 969 former Star employees.

On the Toronto Stock exchange Wednesday, shares of Southam Inc. rose $1.75 a share to $28 as the market responded to news of the demise of The Star.

While details of the agreement — which Perks said would not be made public although he assured that all its general terms were known — were emerging Wednesday the mood was glum in the front lobby of the Star building.

Former employees complained as they were forced to file through a metal detector on their way into the building to pick up their personal belongings.

Former Star columnist Nick Auf der Maur said he found the security precautions ludicrous.

"Do they think it's Fort Knox or something? Do they figure somebody's going to hijack the newspaper?"

It was also announced that officials of the Sterling newspaper group are "prepared to look at the newsaper situation in Montreal" following the folding of the Montreal Star, a Sterling spokesman said Wednesday.

White said his company was studying options to determine whether it will become involved in a bid to revive the newspaper.

However, he was not optimistic that the paper could come back.

Clark names 3 to Senate

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Clark appointed three Progressive Conservative senators today — two men from Quebec and a woman from Alberta.

The Quebecers are Guy Charbonneau, a Montreal businessman who has been a prominent Tory fund-raiser, and Arthur Tremblay, a former deputy minister of intergovernmental affairs in Quebec.

The Alberta appointment went to Martha Bielish, a teacher who has been active for several years in women's rights groups and education councils.

Clark indicated earlier this week that any new Quebec senators would not be appointed to the cabinet as well. New ministers would come from the Commons.

Charbonneau and Tremblay fill the only two vacant seats from the province but five vacancies from other provinces remain.

Standing in the Senate: Conservative 24, Liberal 71, independent 2, Independent Liberal 1, Social Credit 1 and vacant five.
